One Friend, One Enemy
Friend Got the Worst of It
Woe to the Vanquished
Reconstruction or Anarchy

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1922 by Star Co.)

The Allies, with the United States observing, are deciding what to do with Germany and Russia.

Germany is a beaten enemy, and must take what she can get. Russia was an ally, sacrificed more men against Germany than any other two nations. But Russia had the impertinence, surrounded by kings and plutocracies, to set up her own form of government. She, also, must take what she can get.

Russians and Germans must be doing hard thinking. If they had gone together they could have conquered the whole of Europe with ease, and we should now have one Czar and one Kaiser ruling all Europe, instead of having one Kaiser in Holland, one Czar in his grave. It's a dangerous world even for Kaisers and Czars.

England wants to keep Germany alive, for buying and selling is the life of an island nation.

France doesn't care WHAT happens to Germany, quite naturally. She would prefer to see her dead forever. But then Germany couldn't pay any money, and a dead carcass living next to you is a nuisance.

The idea is to find about how much money can possibly be squeezed out of Germany, then get it; at the same time keeping her from getting in a position where she might suddenly change and send over poison gas instead of gold marks.

Five hundred million gold marks yearly, and a thousand million gold marks in goods, mineral, agricultural or manufactured, is said to be the amount that Germany will be told to pay for an indefinite number of years. That would be enough to build a Panama canal about three times every year. You remember what a financial fuss we made about building it once.

When Prussia beat France under Bismarck, he took Alsace-Lorraine which Louis the XIV. had previously taken from Germany, and took one thousand millions in cash from France.

He took WHAT HE WANTED. France had to pay. Under the rules of war France has a right to take what she wants, and Germany has got to pay, or fight, or go bankrupt.

The struggle is not really between France and Germany, but between France and England.

England wants peace and prosperity in Europe, that she may turn her attention to her vast empire all over the world. France wants only peace within her own borders and all the moneys she can get, and denounces England for interfering.

England, it is said, has made inducements to France and may agree to guarantee France from attack from Germany. The original plan as outlined at Versailles was to have the United States join in that guarantee. The people decided against that in the last election. Since then we have made an agreement to guarantee Japan, as a "Pacific Island" against all attack, while she proceeds on her Siberian and Chinese career of piracy. There is no knowing what our statesmen may do about guarantees.

For Russia you might shed a tear or two. She went in with the Allies, did all she could, saw her men shot down in hundreds of thousands, with no weapons in their hands, or with weapons that would not work, and then decided to govern herself in a different way.

She owes France about thirty thousand million francs, six billion dollars in our money. And France wants the Allies to say to Russia, "pay France her thirty billion francs, and we will all be nice to you." At this moment might as well point to a blind beggar and say, "he owes me six billions, make him pay."

The total debt of Russia, including the billions that foolish French Republicans lent to an Autocrat Czar, are but a drop in the bucket compared with Russia's total wealth, if she had a chance to develop it.

Instead of a "reconstructed Europe" there may be in Germany and Russia chaos and anarchy never dreamed of by the wise debt collectors.

In the Russian situation the comic opera element is provided by ship owners charging double the regular rates for carrying food to starving Russian children.

That reminds you of stories told by American soldiers concerning prices they paid the Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. for cigarettes, etc., in Europe. There seems to be a strong American tendency to make charity practical.

CHARGE IS BITTERLY FOUGHT BY DEFENCE

Attorney-General Declares the Alleged "Ring" Extended Over Three Counties

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen arguing today at the trial of District Attorney Joseph C. Pelletier before the Supreme Court on charges of misconduct in office, said he would produce evidence to show that Pelletier, William J. Corcoran and Charles H. Innes, leader of the bar and nationally known as a Republican chieftian, conspired to prevent prosecution of auto thieves in Greater Boston in 1918.

The charge as it affected Innes electrified the audience of atotrneys present at the trial.

Innes is one of the pillars of the G. O. P. in the Bay State and Attorney-General Allen is one of the best known officials who belong to that party.

Allen made the following specific charges against Innes:

1—That Innes was, with William J. Corcoran, counsel for members of the alleged ring of auto thieves in 1918, and that he was assigned to prevent criminal prosecution of said members in Essex County.

2—That Innes said that Assistant District Attorney William S. Kinney was "his man" and had been appointed by Pelletier because Innes has given him the Republican nomination for District Attorney.

3—That Innes said Kinney would present the auto theft cases to the Suffolk County Grand Jury and would so present them that there would be no indictments.

This and equally spectacular developments kept the audience of law

FAMILIES ESCAPE FIRE IN NIGHT CLOTHES

Haverhill, Jan. 10.—Clad only in their night clothes, the families of Mrs. Rose Coppelo and Domenico Spinelli were driven into the street shortly after 8 a. m. today by a fire on the second floor of the two-family house in which they lived. The fire destroyed most of their effects and damaged the building $2,500. Families in the vicinity are sheltering the distressed families.

30 SHAKEN UP IN BOYLSTON ST. SUBWAY CRASH

About thirty passengers were shaken up and several of them slightly injured in a rear-end crash of trolley cars today near the Boylston street station in the subway. A centre entrance car bound for the North Station became stalled on the curve just before it reached the Boylston street stop when the trolley pole slipped off the wire. A Cambridge car, bound for the viaduct via North Station, crashed into it, the vestibules which met being badly smashed.

RADCLIFFE GIRL 'IN LOVE,' TRIED SUICIDE

Unrequited Affection by Roommate Told in Miss Trask's Note

Miss Mary Trask, Radcliffe College senior, now in the Cambridge Hospital with a bullet wound in her head, attempted suicide because of an emotional but unrequited affection for her roommate, Miss Sallie Gifford, the Boston American learned today.

Proof of this affection was revealed in a farewell note written to Miss Gifford by the other girl, which breathed undying love and declared the writer could bear to live no longer.

The note read:

"Darling, I love you, and don't let Lucy know why I decided. I could no longer bear life. Oh, darling, I love you to the point of death. With love that surpasses life. (Signed) Dickie."

"Dickie" was the pet name by which Miss Trask, an athletic and popular member of the student body at Radcliffe, was known.

According to the Boston American's informant, Miss Trask and Miss Gifford roomed together in Whitman Hall. They had what is known in

COX READY TO RUN AGAIN

Abandons Plan to Retire to Private Life, Say Those Close to Chief

Governor Channing H. Cox has abandoned his plans to retire this year at the close of his term. He is today a candidate for re-election.

Those facts became known today from a source that is very close to the Governor himself.

Governor Cox's state of mind was set forth as follows:

His own personal desire is to retire to private life. He has been constantly in public service since 1910, as member of the House, Speaker of the House, Lieutenant-Governor and Governor. His wish is to enter the private practice of law and to establish an income in justice to his family.

SEEKS PARTY UNITY.

But he has practically abandoned his plan to retire and will be a candidate again at the Fall election. He is interested in the fruition of his many inaugural plans, not all of which may be accomplished this year. The reorganization of State departments and commissions, as recommended by the special Commission on State Expenditures, and the abolition of county control of the penal institutions, are among the projects in which he is vitally interested.

Another consideration—this one offered to him by friends of distinctly political thought—is that his retirement would throw the party into a bitter contest for Governor this Fall that might work irreparable harm to the chances of Henry Cabot Lodge or whoevere may be the party candidate for election to the United States Senate at the close of Mr. Lodge's term.

MAY URGE RIVAL TICKET.

Governor Cox's retirement would provoke a contest for the Republican nomination for Governor which might hopelessly divide the party, they fear. Those in the contest, provided he withdrew, might include Lieutenant-Governor Fuller, who is classed by Lodge as a political enemy; President of the Senate Frank G. Allen, Speaker of the House Benjamin Loring Young and Attorney-General J. Weston Allen.

Regardless of Mr. Cox's decision to run, there are members of the party who will attempt to urge into the field against him a ticket consisting of Fuller for Governor and Young for Lieutenant-Governor.

WIFE COLLAPSES AT HEARING ON DIVORCE

Judge Burns in Superior Court divorce session today continued the hearing on cross suits brought by Ashton F. Edwards, who charges his wife with infidelity, and of Mrs. Sadie L. DE VALERA BOLTS DAIL EIREANN

Withdraws With His Followers After Griffith Is Elected President

Dublin, Jan. 10 (By the Associated Press).—Arthur Griffith was elected President of the Dail Eireann today.

Eamon De Valera and his followers walked out while the vote was being taken, in protest against the nomination of Griffith. Speaker MacNeill put the motion for Griffith's election, and he was unanimously chosen.

Griffith moved the appointment of the following cabinet:

Minister of Finance, Michael Collins.

Foreign Affairs, George Gavan Duffy.

Home Affairs, Eamon J. Duggan.

Local Government, William T. Cosgrave.

Economic Affairs, Bryan O'Higgins.

Defense, Richard Mulcahy.

Griffith was placed in nomination by Michael Collins shortly after the beginning of the session. As matters stood, said Collins, Ireland was without a leader. He again charged the opposition with obstructionist tactics and declared its desire was to create the impression that Ireland was still unfriendly to England and to discredit the supporters of the treaty. The present course of the Dail, if persisted in, would give England an excuse for remaining in Ireland, he declared.

OPPOSED BY MACINTEE.

The move to elect Griffith was opposed by Joan MacIntee, who said he questioned the wisdom of putting up, in Griffith, a man who was bound by his signature to the treaty to wreck the Irish Republic. He declared no man who had signed the peace agreement should be President of the Dail. It was proposed to do gratuitously in carrying out the treaty what John Redmond was coerced into doing in 1914, added MacIntee.

Eamon De Valera asked Griffith whether he intended, if elected, to act as the executive of the republic.

The Dail Eireann, he said, was representative of the republic and of nothing else. Peace was not established by the treaty, he declared, as the struggle for the republic would continue.

"This body," added De Valera, "has no right to give away its powers unless it is established as a republican government."

Charles Burgess, following De Valera, declared Griffith had broken the agreement not to sign a treaty until the completed document had been submitted to the Irish cabinet.

TO CARRY OUT TREATY.

"No matter what undertaking Griffith gives now, I oppose his election," he added.

Answering the questions of the opposition, Griffith said that if elected he would use his position to give effect to the constitutional vote of the Dail to carry out the terms of the treaty.

Mr. De Valera continued to press

Bootleg Brew, a Pepper Shaker and Paul Gets a Month

Paul Hadeet drifted into the O. K. Lunch on Washington street last night and proceeded to get fresh with Mildred, the beautiful waiter girl.

Mildred told him to mind his business and Paul started to get rough. Mildred screamed and who should hear her but Policeman Dalton. He hurried to the scene and found Paul emptying the pepper shakers down Mildred's back.

As Paul steamed down the harbor today to spend a month at Deer Island he sadly reflected that the stuff the bootleggers are selling nowadays gets a person into all kinds of scrapes.

PRISONER BRUISED AND CUT

Officers Repeat Loud's Story of Holdup and Tell of Murder Night Events

Testimony to the effect that Clarence W. Loud, charged with the murder of Patrolman James A. Preston, was cut and bruised, on the night of the crime, that his clothing was bloodstained, and that he appeared to be "all in," was given at his trial in the Superior Court at East Cambridge today.

This testimony was brought out during cross-examination of Patrolman Harold S. Wolley of Melrose by Attorney John P. Feeney, senior counsel for Loud.

Chief of Police James J. Pollard of Wakefield also gave his version of what was said and done on the murder night.

Patrolman Wolley said there was a cut on the back of Loud's head, a bruised and swollen spot over the right eye and another bruise near the centre of the forehead.

The witness said Loud's hair was matted with blood, which had run to his collar, that his nightshirt was bloodstained, as was a felt hat, a pillow slip and a white linen collar, all taken from the Loud home. Asked if he would say there was no blood on a

POLICE OFFICERS REPEAT STORY LOUD TOLD ON MURDER NIGHT

ACCUSED MAN WAS CUT AND BRUISED, SAYS WOLLEY

Wolley replied, "No."
handkerchief also taken by the police,

The witness said Loud did not appear exactly dazed, but as though his head bothered him. He admitted it would be fair to say the man was almost "all in."

LOUD'S OWN STORY.

Loud's own story of events on the night that Patrolman "Jim" Preston was killed, as related to the police, was repeated by Patrolman Wolley, who went to the Loud home in response to a telephone call from Mrs. Loud.

Wolley said that Loud sat in a chair, his coat and shoes off, his face and hands dirty, and there were two bruises on his forehead and a cut on the back of his head.

The witness stated that, after hearing Loud's story, he telephoned to the station and got the number of the car, and on his return to the Loud home later the man was placed under arrest.

Loud said he left home about 8:15 that night in his Ford sedan, according to the witness, picking up his wife and daughter on Porter street. He said he took them home and started out again about 8:30 for Lynnfield.

The police officer said Loud claimed to have proceeded directly to Wakefield, past the upper lake and then turning to the right, rode down Lowell street for some distance. He then, the witness stated, said he stopped his car to adjust the engine, and while doing so saw another machine with two people in it. The man, Loud said, according to the witness, asked if there was anything he could do to help and also asked if that was the road to Wakefield. The machine then moved along, the policeman quoted Loud as saying.

In his story as repeated by the policeman, Loud was quoted as saying the next thing he noticed was a man standing beside him. This man struck him on the head, according to his statement, robbed him of his watch, his pocketbook containing $16, his glasses and his car.

The story then went on to say that Loud claimed to have wandered about for some time, until he eventually found himself on another road and made his way home reaching there about 10:30 o'clock.

Previous to the appearance of Wolley, three witnesses testified to seeing Loud on the night in question at the corner of Linden road and Porter street, Melrose. They testified that Loud seemed to be dazed, walking with his head bent forward, with dirt on his shoulders and his hair matted with blood.

These witnesses were George F. Shields of No. 135 Porter street, Melrose; Frank A. Fernald, of Melrose, and F. F. Studley, of No. 135 Porter street, Melrose. Fernald is clerk in the Melrose postoffice and the other two are market men, all leaving Boston on the 9:45 train for Melrose.

Shortly after the opening of court briefs prepared by Attorney John P. Feeney for the defence and District Attorney Endicott P. Saltonstall were submitted to Judge John F. Brown at a conference in his lobby. These briefs had to do with the diary of Patrolman Preston and Loud's operator's license, and were to be argued later, at which time the jury will be excused.

Mrs. Loud and her son, Richard, greeted Loud as soon as he entered the dock today. Mrs. Loud placed both of her hands in her husband's and kissed him. The kiss was a long one and Mrs. Loud showed much emotion as she left her husband.

The strain is telling on her day by day, and she was near to tears as she took her seat.

RICHARD LOUD

After she left, Richard Loud chatted for a few moments with his father and then a man, said to be a business friend of Loud, walked to the dock and talked with him for a minute or two.

There were many women in the spectators' seats today, the greatest number since the trial started.

Former District Attorney John J. Higgins, who prosecuted the Annie Mullins, the Mrs. Richmond and the Jordan murder cases, was an interested spectator.

The first witness today and the government's twenty-third, was George F. Shields of No. 135 Porter street, Melrose, a market man. His house is near Stratford road, Melrose. He was examined by Assistant District Attorney Leverett Saltonstall, nephew of the District Attorney.

Q.—Do you remember the night of April 9, 1921? A.—I was in the Faneuil Hall Market.

Q.—What time did you leave the market? A.—I took the 9:45 train for Melrose.

Q.—Was there anybody with you? A.—There was.

Q.—After getting off at the Melrose station where did you go? A.—We went up Emerson street to Main street and turned into Porter street.

Q.—Did you pass Linden road? A. I did.

Q.—Did you see anyone? A.—I did.

SHIELDS SAW LOUD.

Q.—Who was it? A.—Mr. Loud.

Q.—Where was this? A.—Right at the corner of Linden road and Porter street.

Q.—How far on Linden street were you when you first saw him? A.—On the opposite side of the street.

Q.—Describe the manner he was walking. A.—He had both hands in his pockets and his head was down.

Q.—Did he appear to be dazed? A.—He did.

Q.—Describe his condition. A.—He had on a white collar and he was covered with blood. There was a cut on the back of his head. He had on a dark soft hat. His clothes were all covered with mud.

Q.—Did he stagger along? A.—He did not.

Q.—Did he stumble? A.—He did not.

APPEARED DAZED.

Q.—Tell us what else you saw. A.—We watched him go up Stratford road and go up the steps of his house.

Feeney took Shields for cross-examination.

Q.—How long have you known Mr. Loud? A.—About five years.

Q.—Did Mr. Loud make any attempt to conceal himself? A.—No, sir.

The witness showed the jury where he saw the blood on the back of Loud's head—illustrating on Mr. Feeney.

Q.—Was it his condition which caused you men to stop and watch him as he went up his steps? The District Attorney objected.

"Yes or no, please," said Feeney.

"Yes, sir," was the answer.

E. F. Studley of No. 135 Porter street, another market man, came out on the train which gets to Melrose about 10:05 p. m. He pointed out on the map of the streets on which he walked that night.

Q.—On Saturday evening, April 9 when you were going to your home, did you see Mr. Loud? A.—I did.

THREE WATCHED LOUD.

FRANK E. FERNALD

Q.—Who was with you? A.—My uncle, Mr. Shields, and Frank A. Fernald. We saw Mr. Loud in Porter street — on the left-hand side.

Q.—Did you know Mr. Loud? A.—Just by sight.

He said that, he with the other two men, stood and watched Loud go up his steps.

"He seemed to have something on his mind or was in a dazed condition," said Studley.

Q.—Did he change his attitude at any time you saw him? A.—He did not.

Q.—Did you and the men with you talk about the blood on his collar and neck? A.—We did.

Frank A. Fernald of Melrose, a clerk in the Melrose postoffice, was the third man in the trio that saw Loud that night as he approached his home in Stratford road.

Q.—Did you know Loud by sight? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you see a man at any time that night near the corner of Linden road? A.—I did.

"SEEMED IN STUDY."

Q.—On which side of Linden road was he? A.—The left hand side.

"He seemed to be in a study as he walked along. He walked along with his head bent forward. It was difficult to see his face so far downward was the head bent," said Fernald.

Q.—Did he walk straight ahead, or did he stagger? A.—He walked straight ahead.

The witness said there was dirt on Loud's shoulders and his hair was matted with blood.

The district attorney and counsel for the defence conferred together for a few minutes. They then got up and went up to the bench, where they talked with Judge Brown.

The district attorney then addressed the jury. He said: "Gentlemen, it seems that the next witness the government was about to call, Mary A. Lucey, has gone on a wedding trip. It is agreed that if she were here she would say that at 10:43 o'clock on the night of April 9, Mrs. Loud put in a call for the Melrose police."

Harold S. Wolley, a young Melrose police officer, was the next witness. He was the first of the police witnesses for the State. He said that, in response to a telephone call from the Loud house, he went there that night.

WENT TO LOUD HOME.

Q.—When did you leave the police station that night? A.—Between 10:40 and 10:45 o'clock.

Q.—Who let you in that night? A.—Mrs. Loud.

Q.—Did you see Mr. Loud there? A.—I did.

Q.—Did he make a statement to you? A.—He did.

Q.—Did you take notes that night? A.—I did.

Q.—Have you those notes here A.—I have.

Q.—You may refer to them if you wish. A.—All right, sir.

Q.—Tell me what he said to you that night. A.—He said he left his house at about 8:15 o'clock that night in his Ford car.

"Did he tell you what kind of car it was then?"

"Not at that time. Later in the evening he said it was a Ford sedan and he gave me its number—20264. He said he went down Porter street where he met his wife and daughter. He picked them up, turned back and took them home. He then started out again. He was going to Lynnfield. He left this time at about 8:30 o'clock.

"He said he went directly to Wakefield, past the upper lake, turned to the right down Lowell street, and went down the street for a considerable distance. He then stopped his car to adjust it as it had been giving him considerable bother. Another car came by.

"He thought there were two people in it, one of whom was a woman. The man asked Loud if there was anything he could do to help him, and also asked him if this was the way to Wakefield. They then went along.

"Loud said that he then saw a man standing behind him. The man struck him on the head and robbed him of his watch, his pocket-book containing $16, his glasses and his car. He wandered about and found himself on another road.

"He followed the car tracks and got to his home at about 10:30 o'clock. When I saw Loud he sat in a chair, his coat and shoes off. His face and hands were dirty. There were two bruises on his forehead and a cut on the back of his head.

"I telephoned the station and got the number of his car for Captain Heaton.

"Did you return to the Loud home later that evening?" asked the District Attorney. Witness said he did.

Q.—Was that the time Loud was arrested? A.—It was.

Q.—Was Loud present when you talked with State Officer Smith? A.—He was not.

Q.—What time was Loud arrested? A.—About 12:45 a. m.

Q.—Where did you see him? A.—He was downstairs.

TELLS OF LOUD'S ARREST.

Q.—How was he dressed? A.—I am not sure whether he was in his underclothes or had on pajamas. He had a blanket or a quilt over his shoulders. I went upstairs with him as he put his clothes on. I stood outside his bedroom door. On the way to the station Officer Gates drove the car. Loud sat on the front seat with him. Officer "Joe" Preston stood on the running board beside Loud. Inspector Fay of Melrose, Chief Pollard of Wakefield and myself sat on the back seat.

Q.—After you brought Loud to the station, did you go to his home for the third time? A.—I did. Inspector Fay and Officer Gates went with me.

Q.—Did Loud have on in the station house the same suit as when you first saw him that night? A.—He did.

Q.—Was it in the same condition as when you first saw him? A.—It was not.

Q.—What was the difference? A.—It had been brushed.

Q.—What did you take from the house this time? A.—We brought away various articles of clothing. We took a soft brown hat, a handkerchief, a pillow slip, a night shirt and a wooden cartridge case, containing seven cartridges.

Q.—Where did you get this cartridge case? A.—Mr. Loud's bedroom, in a bureau drawer.

Q.—Did you make a fourth trip to the Loud home? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—What did you get this time? A.—A suit of clothes.

Mr. Feeney began his cross-examination of Officer Wolley.

Q.—You reduced your notes to writing, did you not A.—I did.

Q.—Will you take out your report and look at it as I read to you?

Mr. Feeney then read from a Boston American clipping which was an interview with the witness. The interview told of his visit to the Loud house and what transpired there while he interviewed Loud.

Loud placed the time of assault between 8:45 and 9 o'clock. He said he was rendered unconscious and when he came to he found himself lying on the ground—on another road and his automobile gone.

BRUISES DESCRIBED.

Q.—Did you notice the condition as to his face and the back of his head in relation to blood? A.—I did. The hair was matted with blood. The blood had also run down onto his collar.

Q.—Was the streak a large one? Was it two or three inches wide? A.—It may have been an inch wide.

Q.—Did you examine the coat collar for blood? A.—I did not.

Q.—Was the forehead badly swollen? A.—It was.

Q.—Did it later become black and blue? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did he appear dazed? A.—I wouldn't say dazed; he appeared as though his head bothered him. He did not appear to be well.

Q.—Would it be fair to say he was almost "all in"? asked Mr. Feeney. A.—Yes, sir.

Captain Louis B. Heaton of the Melrose police was the 28th witness for the State.

Q.—Where wree you when this call came from Mrs. Loud? A.—In the station.

Q.—Did you get a piece of an eyeglass from the officer who found Mr. Loud's car? A.—Yes.

GLASSES SHOWN OFFICER.

The piece of eyeglass was shown to Captain Heaton.

Q.—Is that the piece of glass, and is this the button which was handed you that night?

He identified both. Feeney objected to his saying that they were found in Loud's car.

Mr. Feeney then took up his cross-examination.

Q.—Was this telephone call an emergency call? A.—I don't know. The phone rang and I answered it.

The captain said this call came in at about 10:40 p. m., April 9. Later in the evening he made a notation of the call on the book.

Q.—Were you told that Mr. Loud had been held up and robbed? A.—Yes, sir.

CHIEF POLLARD

Chief of Police James J. Pollard took the stand at 12:30.

He said he had been chief of police of Wakefield since October, 1909, and before that he was a member of the Somerville police force for fifteen years.

Q.—What time of night did you hear of "Jim" Preston's death? A.—About 9:25 p. m.

Q.—Were you in the station in uniform? A.—I was fully dressed and about to go home.

Q.—Did you se a man named Dearborn? A.—I did.

Q.—After that what did you do? A.—I went in an automobile to Lowell street.

Q.—Who went with you? A.—Lee Anderson, James Curley and William Thrush.

Q.—What time did you leave the police station? A.—About five minutes after we got the message.

Q.—When you arrived at Lowell street did you see the body of the dead officer? A.—I did.

Q.—Was the officer's cap on or off? A.—It was on.

Q.—How lang were you there, that first time? A.—About fifteen minutes.

Q.—Did you wait for anyone? A.—Yes.

Q.—For whom? A.—Officer Gates, Officer Preston and Dr. O'Leary.

SENT OUT ALARMS.

Q.—What did you do when you got back to the station? A.—I at once sent out alarms to the different police stations.

Mr. Feeney objected and excepted to this testimony.

Q.—At the time you sent out these alarms had you then heard of Mr. Loud being held up by highwaymen?

Feeney objected. The court ruled that the question was admissible and again Feeney excepted.

"You may answer, chief," said the district attorney. "Had you heard of Loud's alleged holdup?"

"I had not," was Chief Pollard's reply.

Q.—After a talk with the officers there, what did you do? A.—We went to Cliftondale to search for an abandoned car.

Q.—Did you find one? A.—No.

Q.—What did you do then? A.—We went back to Melrose police headquarters.

Q.—Who was there when you got back? A.—State Officer Smith.

Q.—What did you do then? A.—We went to the home of Clarence W. Loud. The door was opened by Mrs. Loud. Mrs. Loud was asked if her husband was at home.

Q.—After a conversation between the officers and Mrs. Loud, did Mr. Loud come down? A.—He did.

Q.—How was he dressed? A.—He had his stockings on. He had part of his underwear on and also a bathrobe.

Q.—Did Loud go upstairs? A.—He did.

Q.—What was that for? A.—To put on his clothes.

Q.—And then what did you do? A.—We went to the Melrose police station.

Q.—Who was there? A.—A lady and a gentleman.

Q.—Who was the man? A.—State Treasurer Burrell. (This reference is to former State Treasurer Fred J. Burrell.)

Q.—And who was with him? A.—A lady.

Q.—Who was she? A.—A lady friend of his from Quincy.

Q.—What did you say to Loud? A.—I told him I was "Chief Pollard of Wakefield. These men here are also police officers. We are investigating a serious crime in Wakefield, the killing of a police officer. I warn you of your rights and tell you that anything you may say now may be used for or against you. You do not have to talk unless you wish to. Do you care to make a statement?"

POCKETS TURNED OUT.

Chief Pollard said Loud replied: "I do, chief, I will answer all of your questions." State Officer Smith also warned Loud of his rights and Loud also told him that he could answer any of his questions, the chief testified adding:

"Loud said that he was taking an antique mirror to a man named John Hamden in Lynnfield."

The chief then repeated the story told by Loud substantially the same as testified to by Officer Wooley, adding that Loud said his pockets were turned inside out.

Court was late in coming in for the afternoon session. There were more women present than on any other day of the trial. Police Chief Pollard resumed the stand.

Q.—Do you remember or not, Mr. Smith asked him (Loud) if he could give any description of the man that got out of the machine? A.—I think he did.

Q.—Was Mr. Loud able to give a description of the man who spoke to him? A.—He said he could not.

TELLS OF REVOLVERS.

Chief Pollard said, when he questioned Loud after the murder, Loud said he had on the same clothes, but not the same hat.

The district attorney asked Pollard how Loud accounted for the cut on his face. He said Loud replied he did it shaving after he arrived home.

Q.—At what time did you have the interview with him? A.—Between 12:30 and 1 a. m.

Q.—Did Mr. Loud appear dazed when Mr. Smith was asking him these questions?

"I object," said Attorney Feeney.

Q.—Did he appear dazed when you saw him? A.—No.

Q.—What was his answer to your question of whether he owned two revolvers? A.—He said he owned two Colts, both single action; one he carried in a holster in the attic, the other in the rear seat of his auto.

Q.—Did he say he carried one of the Colts in his car on the night of the murder? A.—Yes.

Q.—Where? A.—Underneath the rear seat of the automobile.

Q.—And his operator's license? A.—In the came place.

Q.—Have you ever seen the revolver said to have been with Mr. Loud on the night of the murder?

"I object," thundered Feeney. "We don't intend to take any chances."

Feeney finally said he didn't object and witness answered, "No."

Q.—Do you remember incident of Mr. Smith showing the hat with blood on it? A.—I do, Loud said at that time that it was the same hat he wore on the night Patrolman Preston was murdered.

That was what I wore, Loud said to me, according to Chief Pollard's testimony.

Q.—After this conversation between Smith and Loud, what did you do after that? A.—He was then placed under arrest and taken to the Wakefield police station. He was asked in regard to eye glasses. He admitted he wore glasses, and that they were not nose glasses. He was shown a piece of a lens. Mr. Loud is that yours and he answered: "I think it is."

ADMITTED OWNERSHIP.

Pollard identified a piece of eye glass.

Q.—Was that piece of glass showed Mr. Loud in your presence? A.—Yes.

Q.—And he admitted ownership? A.—Yes.

Q.—What happened after that? A.—He was taken downstairs to the first aid room, where Preston's body was.

Q.—Did you have certain conversation with Loud? A.—Yes.

CONGRESSMAN GREENE URGES SHIP SUBSIDY

Washington, Jan. 10.—Indications that the administration's plan for a government subsidy for the American merchant marine would receive sympathetic consideration in the House were given today by Representative William S. Greene, Republican, Massacrusetts chairman of the oHuse Merchant Marine Committee. "Help from the treasury must be given the American merchant marine to let it compete with the British and the Japanese merchant fleets," Greene said "You may call this a subsidy, if you will, or use some other name for it, I believe in a sugsidy."

CONVICTED OF ARSON AT 79, ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Belfast, Me., Jan. 10.—Daniel Meservey, seventy-nine, convicted last night of burning the farm buildings on his homestead at Morrill, which he had deeded to his son, Frank O. Meservey, on condition that he be given a home there during his life, attempted suicide at the county jail early today, jabbing his neck with a pocket knife. He was unconscious, but a physician thought he might recover.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN ENDS LIFE WITH GAS

Keene, N. H., Jan. 10.—Lewis Dwight Darling, seventy-seven years old, a Civil War veteran and adjutant to John Sedgewick Post, G. A. He is survived by several children.

FIRST WORLD LEAGUE IN "BABEL," SAYS NORRIS

"The first league of nations was in the Towel of Babel, mentioned in the Bible," Dr. J. Frank Norris, "Texas Tornado" evangelist, told a large audience at noon today in Tremont Temple. "I do not know what you think of this League of Nations in Boston," he added, "but if I read the Bible aright, I should say that America should keep herself free from it, as she has. This is the fulfillment of Scripture."

Why the extra saving

The Weber and Heilbroner stock was first put on sale two weeks ago at 40% less than their original prices. Hundreds of suits and overcoats have gone since then, but it was inevitable that out of such a huge lot of clothes some should be left at the end of twelve selling days.

Consequently our automatic plan brings to thrifty men a still further saving of 25% from our first prices. Not all kinds at every price, but something for everybody in the lot, provided you get here early Wednesday.

CHARLES GARLAND SAYS HE WILL GIVE MOST OF HIS MILLION AWAY

$300,000 FOR WIFE AND CHILD

Middleboro, Jan. 10.—Charles Garland, the twenty-two-year-old farmer idealist who startled the country a year ago by refusing to accept a $1,000,000 legacy from his father and who came again into the public eye yesterday by announcing that he had changed his mind and would take the money, is going to profit by his acceptance by less than $1,000.

The astounding young man who said once that "Christ wouldn't accept a million dollars—why should I?" coolly told interviewers that he will give the vast fortune away, retaining only a few hundred dollars to help him rehabilitate his somewhat rundown farm here.

One-third of the legacy will be settled on his wife and infant daughter, from whom, by the way, Garland has separated. The rest will be divided equally among ten chosen friends.

These recipients of the money will be persons in whom Garland has confidence—persons who will, he believes, use the money for humanity. And yet the youthful idealist will not ask any accounting. Should these friends suddenly decide to spend the money for selfish purposes, he will say nothing.

WIFE HAS LEFT HIM.

It was at first reported that Garland's wife had induced him to reconsider his original determination to remain in comparative poverty. But now, although the young husband will not discuss the matter fully, it appears that she has gone to live with her parents, unable to approve of his altruistic plans when they involved actual want and even misery for his family. So she will receive her share—well over $300,000—and Garland will give the remainder away.

The elder Garland left a total of $3,000,000 to be divided among his three sons. Charles Garland at once rejected his share, as did his brother Hamilton, who was then a sophomore at Harvard. The third son, James A. Garland, had no hesitancy in accepting his money, however.

At the time he refused the fortune, Garland explained his position as follows:

"I believe that in refusing to accept my share of the estate I am placing my life on a Christian basis. Private property is the principal cause of our unrest and unhappiness. It saps all the meaning from life."

His brother Hamilton, a student at Harvard University, agreed heartily with the philosophy of Charles and warned away the administrator. "In my opinion," said he, "my brother was right and when I reach my majority next year, I will do the same thing."

TOILED AS MECHANIC.

All of which was very high and noble-minded, and Charles Garland was filled with a feeling of virtuous satisfaction as he toiled as a mechanic to support his fair young bride. The couple had their home in a disreputable, out-of-repair farmhouse, off the main road. They seemed to be happy, for about a year.

Then came an event that brought to young Garland the realization that money was not such a despicable thing, after all. As a result of this realization, young Mrs. Garland was sent to a hospital in Boston, where she gave birth to a healthy baby girl.

The husband capitulated immediately. He notified the administrators of his father's estate that he had changed his mind. He said he had decided it was better to put the money into circulation than to have it tied up in a trust fund. He even issued a statement to that effect.

FRENCH ACADEMY TO FIGHT RACE SUICIDE

Paris, Jan. 10.—The French Academy of Immortals has entered the list against race suicide in France. Ten prizes of 10,000 francs each ($2,000) will be awarded annually to deserving large families, it was announced today. The money is derived from a legacy bequeathed by the late Mme. Spiers and providing an annual revenue of 103,000 francs.

MAY END TERM OF CURLEY IN TWO YEARS

Representative Lane Files Bill for Election in 1923 by Primary System

Mayor-elect James M. Curley will be turned out of office in 1923, at the end of the second year of his four-year term, and an entirely new system of electing the city officials of Boston will be established if the Legislature enacts a bill filed in the House today by Representative Benjamin C. Lane, Republican, of Ward 22.

Lane's bill provides that in November, 1923, the people of Boston will begin to elect their mayor, members of the Council and School Committeemen by the primary system.

The primaries would be held in November, and the two candidates for mayor receiving the highest number of votes in the primaries would go to the polls on election day. If three City Councillors were to be elected, six would be nominated in the primaries to make the race at the election. The mayor would be elected for a four-year term.

Lane has one section in his bill which says that the mayor of Boston in 1923, who will be Mr. Curley, would not be stopped from entering the primaries.

'BANDIT QUEEN' OF 12 TRAPPED IN CHELSEA

Led Children in Raids on Stores, Beat Rebels With Fists Police Are Told

A twelve-year-old girl, masquerading in boy's clothes, was revealed today as the "queen" of a gang of young bandits, from seven to ten years old, which has obtained loot worth several hundred dollars in a series of ten breaks in Chelsea.

Under her leadership stores were entered and robbed, plate glass windows were broken and jewelry stolen and the Shurtleff School, where she was a pupil, broken into.

The "bandit queen" was trapped when some of the younger members of her gang "peached" on her and all the youngsters will be in the juvenile session of Chelsea Court on Monday.

Patrolman Finn found some boys in a doll factory on William street, Chelsea, and took them to the police station. When they were questioned they told the names of all the youthful gang, including that of the girl leader.

GIRL POUNDED REBELS.

The police found the young girl one of the most remarkable personalities they have ever had to deal with.

The girl was the brains and directing force of the organization. She led her band of desperadoes on their nocturnal trips. When their courage failed and they threatened to quit, she beat them into submission with her fists and threatened dire consequences to deserters and traitors.

After each robbery the girl divided the spoils with the gang and planned the next exploit. Often absenting herself from school, she walked about the city choosing the scene of the next robbery.

Each member was carefully coached by the girl leader in the part he was to play. This was the story told to the police. So thoroughly were the robberies rehearsed that not a clew was left behind.

The Chelsea police have been baffled for several weeks by the robberies. The entire department has been trying to solve the series of breaks, officers and men having been confident a gang of clever men was responsible.

As they sat in the guardroom of the Chelsea police station the young bandits made an unusual picture. They were questioned at length and then their parents were notified. The latter were as amazed as the police at the stories they told.

The names of the offenders were not given out by the police.

girls' institutions as a "crush" on each other, and for a long time were inseparable.

BROODED OVER COOLNESS.

After the holidays Miss Gifford's feeling for her roommate showed an appreciable coolness, it is said, and the other girl brooded over the ever-widening rift.

On Sunday night she wrote the tragic note of farewell and a short time later the muffled report of a pistol shot was heard from her room, in which the girl was alone.

An uproar resulted in the dormitory, but order was quickly restored and everyone was instructed to do no talking. Investigation revealed the fact that Miss Trask had been shot in the right temple, just above the right eye. The young woman was removed to the Cambridge Hospital, but it was not until 11 o'clock, three hours after the shooting, that the police were notified.

A more or less successful attempt was made to keep the affair a secret, but when news of it leaked out, a statement was issued by the authorities that Miss Trask was accidentally shot while examining a pistol. According to this statement, Miss Trask knew the weapon was loaded, but made the mistake of believing she had slipped the safety catch into place.

POLICE GET NOTE.

The police for a time were equally uncommunicative, but eventually announced they believed the young woman had attempted suicide. This theory was indignantly rejected by the college authorities and friends of the wounded girl, but was confirmed by today's investigations.

It is known that the police have obtained access to the farewell note written by Miss Trask, and it is believed that she has made a statement to them in the hospital.

Miss Trask, whose home is in California, has an aunt of the same name at No. 103 Chestnut street, Boston. The girl student was an exponent of the outdoor life and was a member of the Radcliffe hockey team that met the English girls who recently visited this country.

She was also one of the leading workers for the Radcliffe Endowment Fund and collected a large sum of money by taking groups of fifty children on long "hikes" and charging a certain sum for each child.

It is understood that an investigation will be made to learn why the college authorities failed to report the shooting to the police until three hours after it took place.

SHAVED OFF WAVY HAIR.

One of the well informed students told the American that Miss Trask had always been different from the other girls. As an example she said that Miss Trask had cut off her wavy red hair, shearing it close to the scalp like a man, and not bobbing it. Several other girls in her immediate following did the same thing.

Dean Marion Parks declared that Miss Trask had not attempted suicide and defended the girl as being simply big and careless.

"I don't know any better authority," said Dean Parks, "than Miss Trask. When Miss Trask says she did not attempt suicide I believe her. Of course it will be impossible for her to return to college this year. As to next year I can't say. I am almost inclined to think I might admit her.

"One thing I feel badly about is her possession of a revolver. It never seemed necessary to me to explain to the girls that they should not have weapons in their possession. Hereafter there will be no firearms permitted in the rooms.

"The police and others have gone a long way and are stretching their imaginations far in support of theories they advance. Miss Trask is simply a big, careless kind of a girl, always getting hurt. Of course I know she left a note. I am inclined to wish under the circumstances she hadn't.

"So far as the note goes it seems to me to be simply an affectionate note from one friend to another."

CITY PREPARES TO SELL PROPERTY FOR BACK TAXES

City Collector E. V. B. Parke today called to the attention of the taxpayers that last years taxes remaining unpaid after January 15 would go on interest at 8 per cent., dating back from October 6. Demand notices have been issued on 1921 tax bills, so that it is now possible to prepare for sale those properties on which the taxes have not been paid.

When property is prepared for sale for unpaid taxes it involves considerable additional expense.

VOODOO ANTICS SCARE WOMEN IN COURT

They Flee When Negro Brothers Perform in Action Against "Sorcerer"

The warrant session of the Municipal Court under Judge Creed, where many strange scenes have been enacted, today witnesses a demonstration of the effect of voodooism on the negro mind, when Stanford and Charles Holden, brothers, of No. 85 Rutland square, South End, startled the court and spectators, by suddenly acting as though bewitched and going through a series of antics.

Women ran from the courtroom in fear and the court officers were obliged to take a hand to quell the disturbance.

Inspector Cronin and Sergeant John McDonald appeared before Judge Creed to apply for a warrant charging George Bryant, a colored Spiritualist, with the larceny of $11 from Stanford and $12 from Charles Holden, which it is alleged the negro "sorcerer" secured from the brothers, from the sale of a charm warranted to protect them from all harm.

Yesterday neighbors informed the police of the strange actions of the two brothers in the vicinity of Rutland square. The police took the men to the East Dedham street station where they told a strange story concerning the purchase and power of the "voodoo."

They said they had been going to Bryant for several months past as students of voodooism. Recently, they said Bryant sold them a "voodoo," which in this case happened to be an ordinary piece of cloth bound in a peculiar fashion with twine, for which Stanford paid $11 and Charles paid $12.

They said they were told by Bryant that Boston was about to be burned up in three days, but that the "voodoo" would save them from the fire.

Bryant is alleged to have wrought the men to such a state of mind by telling them that if either touched, spoke or did anything in unison with the other one of them would surely die. As a result of this warning the men shunned each other from that time on and began acting strangely in the neighborhood.

After Inspector Cronin had related the story Judge Creed asked if the case could not be settled, suggesting that the men shake hands and forget it.

Then the weird scene was enacted. Both men placed themselves, one against the wall and the other beside the bench railing and with horrible facial contortions and uttering weird sounds, leaped at each other.

Women became alarmed and ran from the courtroom and the court looked on in surprise. Inspector Cronin and Sergeant McDonald grabbed the men and endeavored to quiet them but they continued with their grimaces and strange noises.

Judge Creed granted a warrant against Bryant and requested that the case be heard in private session, saying that he thought the men needed sympathy.

Bryant was found guilty when arraigned later before Judge Sullivan on two counts of larceny. He appealed a jail sentence of two months and was held in $300 bail.

SUES TO STOP SHOWING OF THEATRICAL ILLUSION

An incorporation known as "The Sawing a Woman in Half Company" has brought suit against Al Flosso and others to prevent the play from being presented at the Waldorf Theatre, and at Waltham. The plaintiff says it acquired rights from the inventor of the illusion, and that Melville A. Seldon, while a member of the company, from which he has been discharged, was intrusted with the secret which he has imparted to Flosso. The plaintiff company says that on account of unfair competition it has suffered financial loss, and beside asking that Flosso be restrained, the company wants damages.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR COL. ROGER F. SCANNELL

Kelliher, former U. S. Marshal P. J. Duane, Corporation Counsel Arthur D. Hill and Representative James A. Goode. Interment was at Holyhood Cemetery.

GRAND JURY MAY HEAR GLOUCESTER FISH ROW

Gloucester, Jan. 10.—Mayor Percy W. Wheeler, who charged in his inaugural address that the fish dealers here were selling split pollock as mackerel and misbranding other fish, will be asked to prove his statements before the Grand Jury, it was intimated by members of the Chamber of Commerce committee. Following a long conference with Wheeler, members of the committee said that Mayor Wheeler would not retract his charges. They said if the mayor does not retract the charges shortly, the committee will ask District Attorney S. Howard Donnell to summons him before the Grand Jury to prove his assertions.

OPPOSE PLAN TO LEASE WINTER ST. SUBWAY

Law Department Claims Rental Should Go to City Instead of Elevated

Plans of the Boston Elevated Railway Company to lease space under Winter street in the Cambridge Subway to Shepard Norwell Company, Gilchrist Company and Conrad & Co., Inc., for the storage and sale of merchandise met with objection before the Commission on Public Utilities today.

Joseph P. Lyons, representing the law department of the city of Boston, said that the city government feels that the revenue should come to the city. He agreed, however, that if the State commission decides that the Winter street "gallery" is part of the subway and approves the Elevated's plans, the city will place no obstruction in the way.

F. G. Goodale, counsel for the Flagg Estate and for the Reynolds Building Trust, said his clients wished to place no obstacle in the way of the plans, but want to protect their rights as owners of the land abutting on the street.

William A. Kneeland, representing the Jackson Confectionery Company, protested against the proposal. He claimed that the proposed lease of a portion of the subway for use by department stores is not a proper use of the subway. The hearing was continued to January 19.

PERET ELECTED HEAD OF FRENCH DEPUTIES

Paris, Jan. 10.—Raoul Peret was this afternoon elected president of the French Chamber of Deputies and M. Bourgeois was re-elected president of the Senate.

GEO. H. WRENN MYSTERY IS SOLVED

Father Was Known as "Ryan," So Governor Cox Withdrew Appointment

The mystery surrounding the refusal of the Governor's Council to confirm the renomination of George H. Wrenn of Springfield as a member of the State Board of Parole was solved today when it became known that to all legal intents and purposes there may not be any such person as George H. Wrenn.

This will surprise thousands of people in the State, who have known "George H. Wrenn" as the president of the Massachusetts State Branch, American Federation of Labor, as the Socialist candidate for Governor, as a member of the War Labor Board, and as the man who had been chosen by Governor Calvin Coolidge and Governor Channing H. Cox to serve as a member of the State Board of Parole.

Mr. Wrenn was appointed to the Parole Board two years ago when Mr. Coolidge was Governor. His term expired, and Governor Cox last month reappointed him, sending his name to the Governor's Council for confirmation.

While Governor Cox was in the South, attending the Governors' Conference, Councillor Aldrich of Springfield asked that the confirmation of Mr. Wrenn's appointment be held up, saying that more or less opposition to him had sprung up from people in and near Springfield.

When Governor Cox returned from the South, he received a letter from a person who asserted that there was no such person as "George H. Wrenn"; that his name really was "George H. Ryan." Governor Cox sent for Mr. Wrenn and asked him the facts in the case.

Mr. Wrenn said that his folks were born in Ireland. The family name was Wrenn. The father came to this country and settled in New Braintree, where George was born. The father's name had gradually changed from Wrenn to "Rynn" and "Ryan."

Mr. Wrenn is said to have told Governor that when he was [illegible] he decided to revert to the old family name of "Wrenn," and that he since has been known to his family, friends and associates as "George H. Wrenn."

There had been more or less opposition to Mr. Wrenn's confirmation because of his connection with the Socialist party, and there had been some opposition also from Socialists, who claimed that Mr. Wrenn was no longer faithful to their theories. Because of those facts and because of the doubt that "George H. Wrenn" could be legally appointed and confirmed, Governor Cox withdrew his appointment.

STORM SIGNALS ON BILL TO KEEP LAWLER IN OFFICE

The bill to continue Charles S. Lawler in office as the superintendent of the city of Boston printing plant against the wishes of Mayor-elect Curley will be given a hearing tomorrow at the State House. The hearing will be the first to be held by a committee of the Legislature and is certain to arouse the first storm of protest by the Curley forces against legislative action affecting Boston. Lawler was attacked as a "slacker" by Mayor-elect Curley in his campaign and Mr. Curley said the first act of his new administration would be to "fire" both Lawler and Health Commissioner Woodward. The bill puts Lawler under civil service, thereby making him a permanent appointee.

DE VALERA BOLTS THE ELECTION OF GRIFFITH

for a definite answer to his question whether Griffith would act as the executive of the republic.

"The Republic of Ireland," replied Griffith, "remains in being until the Free State comes into being and there is to opportunity to put the question to the electorate."

Griffith said the Dail had approved the treaty and that it must be carried into effect. Therefore, he added, "we must have a provisional government."

Miss Mary MacSwiney said Griffith had made it clear he intended to get Lloyd George to indorse the Dail as the provisional government.

The Dail resumed its sittings at 11:30 o'clock with the reading by Speaker John MacNeill of a cable message from Cardinal Gasparri, on behalf of Pope Benedict, saying the Pope rejoiced with the Irish people at the agreement that had been reached, and sent his blessing to them after they had passed through their long period of sorrows faithful to the Catholic Church.

Another message read was from the Irish Labor party, asking the Dail to receive a deputation for a conference regarding the economic and industrial situation.

Michael Collins then rose and said the Dail must organize immediately some form of government to prevent a state of anarchy. The Dail must make the treaty a success, he declared. He referred to the difficulties the new government would meet, and urged harmonious co-operation to surmount them.

"Unless we show we are not hostile," he said, "England will have an excuse for continuing in Ireland."

Collins moved that Arthur Griffith be appointed president of the Dail Eireann.

The Irish nation had no captain, continued Collins, who proceeded to tell the Dail that he had received a letter from the proprietor of the Cork Examiner, saying the management of that newspaper had been held up this morning at 2 o'clock and compelled to publish a proclamation.

Collins said he called such methods "Black and Tan methods," whoever employed them.

Collins said that if his motion passed such matters could be dealt with. They were giving the North of Ireland every excuse for not coming in, he declared, and giving England an opportunity of remaining in Ireland.

The other side, said Collins, although they had promised not to obstruct, had interfered with the departments and had checked the labor department from proceeding with arbitration important to the country.

The other side, asserted Collins, wanted to retain the machinery so as to show England that Ireland was still unfriendly, and then turn around and say to the supporters of the treaty, "We told you so."

If the Dail proceeded as it had been doing it would afford England an opportunity of returning to Ireland to preserve order.

David King, referring to the Cork Examiner incident, charged that Collins himself had in the past ordered similar action. Collins indignantly repudiated this.

John MacIntee, opposing the election of Griffith, said the opposite side, like John Redmond, was anxious to prove to England that they were even better than their word. England never had signed a treaty with Ireland that it did not dishonor, he declared, and the opposite side might soon be floundering in a sea of English treachery.

British to Withdraw All Troops From Southern Erin.

By Associated Press.

London, Jan. 10.—The Times declares that all British forces are to be withdrawn from Ireland, excepting Ulster, as rapidly as possible, the movement involving about 50,000 men.

The amnesty to be granted by the British government, according to the newspaper, is expected to embrace all who can be regarded as coming under a generous construction of the phrase "political prisoners."

IRELAND SLATED FOR LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Dublin, Jan. 10.—Ireland expects to be admitted to the League of Nations as a free state during 1922, it was learned today. It is expected that formal application will be made as soon as the Irish Free State comes into being and that Great Britain will see to it that Ireland is successful in gaining admission.

500 DEPOSITORS MAKE SCENE IN COURTHOUSE

Then March to State House and Demand Appearance of Bank Commissioner

Two hundred angry depositors in the closed Hanover and Cosmopolitan Trust Companies aroused, they declared, by delay in the payment of dividends, marched from the Court House to the State House today after storming the Court House to demand an explanation from Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen.

They gathered about the statue of General Banks on the Bowdoin street side of the capitol and held a protest meeting. State House watchmen and members of the State Police were ordered out by Superintendent of Public Buildings Kimball to prevent any possible disorder.

"Send Bank Commissioner Allen out here at once," demanded the spokesmen of the depositors—men and women.

TALK WITH ALLEN'S SECRETARY

F. Earle Wallace, secretary to the commissioner, sent word that Mr. Allen was not at the State House. He asked that the depositors send a delegation to the Bank Commissioner's office and he would hear their story.

John Averill was chosen spokesman. He told Commissioner Allen's secretary that the depositors were disappointed by the pending petitions to pay only five per cent. dividends at present.

Many of the depositors were decidedly angry, Averill declared. They felt, he said, that the Bank Commissioner did not truly represent them and that the delays experienced by those who had money in the closed trust companies were not fair to them.

Secretary Wallace replied that the depositors had every right to be heard. He telephoned to Henry O. Cushman, liquidation agent of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company, who was at the Court House at a hearing. Mr. Wallace asked that a special room be set aside at the Court House for the depositors and that he hear their story and determine if they had counsel prepared to take all needed steps to protect their interests.

Mr. Averill and his delegation then reported to the waiting crowd of 200 outside the State House, and the party marched back to the Court House by way of Ashburton place.

At the Court House a hearing was in progress before Judge Crosby in the Supreme Court on the petition of Bank Commissioner Allen for authority to pay additional dividends.

Notices of the hearing had been sent to all depositors. Fully 500 of them came to the Court House and thronged and jostled about in the corridor of the Supreme Court. It was apparent that most of the men and women believed that they were to receive cash payments today and that those at the head of the line would receive their money first.

When no money appeared there were murmurs in the crowd. Some of the leaders made speeches and there was cheering and applause. Court officers tried in vain to quiet the crowd and a call was sent to Police Station 2. When a number of patrolmen appeared, some one in the crowd suggested a parade to the State House to see Bank Commissioner Allen.

About 200 rushed outside to form the parade, while the rest milled about in the Court House corridor.

Those who remained made so much noise that Judge Crosby suspended the hearing while he sent a court officer to find out the cause of the disturbance.

Judge Crosby then announced to a dozen of the depositors who had found their way into the hearing room that they need not have come, for counsel were there to protect their interests. He announced his willingness, however, to hear any of the depositors then present who wished to be heard. The hearing was then resumed.

FURNACE CAUSES $3,000 BLAZE AT CONCORD

Fire which threatened other buildings today caused $3,000 damage to Heywood's Block on Main street Concord and the contents of two stores. Patrolman Patterson discovered the blaze, which started from an overheated furnace. Goods in the Concord Drug Store, owned by John W. Chase, and in Hollis S. Howe's jewelry store were badly damaged, as was the office of Theophilus Mason on the second floor. The building is owned by C. Fay Heywood of Concord.

CHARLES D. MILLER DIES SUDDENLY AT HIS DESK

Charles D. Miller, vice-president of the Sudbury street paint concern, Gould & Cutter, Inc., was stricken at his desk today while talking to another official of the firm, and died before medical aid could reach him. He was to have been elected president of the company at a meeting of the directors next Saturday, to succeed the late George L. Gould. Mr. Miller was fifty-three years old, married and lived in Swampscott.

HELD IN $5,000 BAIL FOR DOORWAY HOLDUP

Harold Halmer and Charles Cook, both of Dartmouth street, were each held in $5,000 in Municipal Court today. They are charged with attempt to rob James A. Patsiades. Patsiades, a South End fruit dealer, was held up in the doorway of his home. Halmer and Cook were arrested.

Smooth as ice, soft and pure as snow, full of pep as Jack Frost and there's only one thing more delicious than your first taste of it—each taste thereafter.

ALLEN ACCUSES CHARLES H. INNES OF BEING IN AUTO THEFT RING

CHARGES HE WAS RETAINED TO 'LOOK AFTER' CASES IN ESSEX

yers on tiptoe with expectancy during a very busy session.

Attorney-General Allen's charges regarding Innes, influential fellow Republican, were made in taking up the case of George T. Perry, alleged to have been at one time the brains of the auto theft ring operating in Suffolk, Middlesex and Essex counties.

STATE'S EVIDENCE.

Perry himself furnished no small sensation when his appearance on the stand gave public notice that he had turned State's evidence.

In the Perry et al. cases Attorney-General Allen charges that Pelletier was blind to unjustifiable acts committed by his assistants and that his blindness resulted in failure properly to prosecute the auto thieves.

It was from his evidence and admissions, mostly, that Attorney-General Allen quoted in making his allegations regarding Innes.

Attorney Louis C. Boyle for the defence protested strenuously against the evidence of conspiracy, claiming it was an entirely new charge and should not be injected in the middle of a trial.

Boyle become heated in his opposition and said if such evidence were to be allowed in it would be impossible to protect the interests of Pelletier.

Attorney George T. Perry, one of the alleged leaders of the auto ring, who turned State's evidence against them, testified that in 1918 he had a law office at No. 262 Washington street.

Q.—During or prior to 1918 did you do some business in connection with auto leases? A.—Yes.

Q.—Some time in the Summer of 1918 were criminal proceedings instituted against you? A.—Yes, in September, 1918.

CORCORAN MEETING.

Q.—Who did you talk with in Corcoran's office? A.—William J. Corcoran, Alton Eldridge, Charles H. Innes and Frank McDermott.

Q.—Did Corcoran say something about certain sums of money?

Attorney Boyle: I object. This is irrelevant.

Attorney-General Allen: "The proof I wish to make is as follows: After the occasion referred to by this witness, Inspector Sheehan came to this witness' home with Collamore in custody, and Perry then learned that criminal proceedings had been started. Before this there had been a meeting in Corcoran's office when this witness, Barry and Corcoran, were present. It will appear that at this time Corcoran asked to represent the party. At that time $5,000 was paid to Corcoran to retain him in connection with any criminal proceedings relating to auto dealings.

"It will be shown that at this later meeting to which the witness has just referred that Corcoran took the matter up again, and while the defendants claimed they were innocent Corcoran said that if they were actually guilty they would be indicted and he demanded more money, $10,000.

"Barry then retained Charles H. Innes. Pembroke then retained Eldridge. A meeting was arranged, and it was decided that Corcoran and Innes would together represent these defendants to prevent criminal proceedings. Innes was to look after criminal proceedings in Essex County and Corcoran was to take care of Middlesex and Suffolk Counties.

$10,000 PAID.

"Proceedings were instituted at once in Essex and Middlesex counties prior to those in Suffolk county, and then after $10,000 had been placed in the hands of John R. McVey to be paid Corcoran on release from Pembroke, Perry had other conversations at Corcoran's office. One of them took place after he had been summoned to Corcoran's office in great haste, with a report that something important had occurred.

"Perry found Barry there and they informed him that a slip had been made in Suffolk County and a warrant had issued from the Municipal Court. Both Innes and Corcoran had left word to be advised of any criminal proceedings started in the lower court but somehow they had not been notified. They were told they would 'be taken care of' in the Superior Court, where arrangements had already been made. They were to waive examination in Municipal Court and bonds would be furnished."

According to Allen, Innes was to prevent prosecutions in Essex County and Corcoran was to look out for the Middlesex and Suffolk counties.

"John Marshall Barry retained Charles H. Innes and Pembroke retained Attorney Eldridge. It was arranged at this conference that Eldridge would not stay in the case, and the defendants would be looked after by Corcoran and Innes, who would prevent criminal prosecution.

"It was learned by counsel in another conference in Corcoran's office that an indictment would not be returned before Saturday and that Corcoran had seen 'the big fellow,' who was Pelletier. When the cases came before the Grand Jury, Innes said they would be presented by 'his man, Kinney,' who had been appointed to the office because Innes had given Pelletier the Republican nomination, and that he would 'take care' of the matter.

NO BILLS RETURNED.

"It was arranged that Perry and Barry go to the courthouse and make statements before the Grand Jury, and that after they testified that no bills would be returned. We will show that the witness went before the Grand Jury and that when he made his statement there John Marshall Barry was present, and that while Barry was making his statement to the Grand Jury Perry was present. That was on Friday. On the following day there were no bills returned by the Suffolk County Grand Jury.

"We intend to show that the $10,000 held by John R. McVey was paid to Corcoran, and we will show by conversations held in the presence of the witness that Innes claimed part of the $10,000, in addition to the $750 retainer which had been paid.

"There was a fee of $5,000 paid to Corcoran before the $10,000."

Attorney Louis C. Boyle, junior counsel for Pelletier, bitterly attacked Allen's statement, saying it was entirely foreign to the bill of information and came as a complete surprise to the defence.

He said the defence had been given no notice on a charge, which he considered one of the most serious advanced by the prosecution.

WITHOUT NOTICE.

"Under Paragraph 30," he said, referring to the bill of information, "Attorney-General Allen has offered the cases and charges involving George T. Perry et al. The complaint of Allen here is that Pelletier was blind to the misconduct of his deputies or assistants. This specification was so vague as originally drawn that additional specifications were requested, and the additional information told us that Perry and the others had been charged with larceny in 1918.

"Now, today, for the first time, we have this serious charge introduced without the slightest notice. This charge is hypothecated in the case of Assistant District Attorney Kinney. Counsel for the State attempt to inject hearsay evidence, to support the gravest kind of a conspiracy charge.

"Our client has no notice or opportunity to prepare a defence to that which to him is dearer than life. We have the charge made here for the first time that Attorneys Innes and Corcoran agreed to divide between them their territory for the protection of auto thieves.

"There has been no attempt, in the bill of information, to hint at conspiracy. Yet we find conspiracy charges in other cases in Allen's information. Why, if this was a case of conspiracy, was it not so listed in the bill of information? If this can be done without warning it is hopeless to try to protect our clients in this court."

"AMPLE EVIDENCE."

Attorney-General Allen—Evidence of this character was presented before the Grand Jury, showing that it was conspiracy as well as larceny. The other side had sufficient notice. Applications for warrants were made in the Municipal Court and warrants were issued on the advice of the respondent.

"There was ample evidence of conspiracy before the Grand Jury."

Allen then offered authorities in support of his right to introduce such evidence and question Perry.

Attorney-General Allen—"Evidence was offered before the Suffolk Grand Jury regarding the larceny of two cars in Suffolk County and the evidence showed that various persons were involved. I had the Grand Jury records written out and have supplied the respondent with a copy. There is no question about the nature of the proceeding.

"My answer to the claim that counsel for the respondent had no suspicion of what would be charged in this case is that the Municipal Court proceeding contradicts such a theory, as does the statement made by Sergeant Sheehan that he tried to induce Pelletier to indict the defendants for automobile thefts committed in Suffolk County and Pelletier replied he would not wash the dirty linen of Middlesex County.

"These Grand Jury minutes show there was ample information concerning both larceny and conspiracy and justify our claim that conspiracy was part of the transaction."

RUIN HIS LIFE.

Attorney Boyle—The Attorney-General's statement is extraordinary. His new accusations are entirely outside his bill of information. Why didn't he list his conspiracy charge as he did others in his bill? And not try to conceal it in Paragraph 30, relating to the misconduct of assistants.

"We had a right to get proper specifications. On my honor as a lawyer I wish to inform this high court I had never had a dream of such a charge as this one by the Attorney-General.

"What opportunity have we today to meet this charge? What opportunity have we got to confer with Innes or Corcoran or the others named? We are taken at a disadvantage. Our hands are tied if the court permits this evidence.

"No such vicious charge should be permitted in the middle of a trial. It is a charge of venal conduct which could ruin and poison our client's whole life. I most earnestly object to its introduction."

Chief Justice Rugg asked Allen if he intended to show that a fee of $5,000 had been paid, and later a fee of $10,000, and that these amounts figured in the Grand Jury hearing. Allen replied that he did not know what the amounts mentioned were, but that Innes and Corcoran were the lawyers and that they were active in preventing prosecution. He also stated their names were mentioned before the Grand Jury.

Chief Justice Rugg—Do you purpose to show that these statements by Perry were made before the Grand Jury in the presence of Pelletier?

Allen—We will show that Pelletier went into the Grand Jury room with Perry and that he remained for a time. The records do not show who put the questions. But we will show that Assistant District Attorney Kinney presented the case. The Commonwealth does not know whether Pelletier stayed throughout the proceedings.

Senator Reed took up the argument:

"Now the charge of the information is not a charge that Pelletier had entered into a conspiracy. It is a charge that he had sufficient evidence and did not prosecute. This can be proved in this case only by proving that he failed to put before the Grand Jury the evidence in his possession.

"If witnesses were not brought before the Grand Jury in the usual way and if Pelletier failed to present their testimony so that the Grand Jury was misled, then this charge would be sustained.

CHARLES H. INNES

LIES WITH GRAND JURY.

"If he brought evidence before the Grand Jury and the Grand Jury failed to indict, then the responsibility lies with the Grand Jury and not with the District Attorney. It has not been claimed by the State, and it will not be shown, that Pelletier withheld a particle of evidence from the Grand Jury. The most that can be proved is that Pelletier allowed two witnesses who claimed they were innocent, to tell their stories.

"But this is nothing unusual and is not improper. It is the business of the District Attorney to present all facts for prosecution to the Grand Jury both pro and con, unless the defendant is liable to escape by knowing in advance of the proceedings or unless he is deprived of his constitutional rights in being called upon to testify against himself.

WHAT CONNECTION

"It is claimed these witnesses disclosed—what?—conspiracy as told today?—not at all. Not that money was paid or improperly used, but that there was proceedings against the same defendant in other countries for the same act, or so connected with the same act that they could be tried there. A very good reason to let those countries take the case.

"But how does all that connect with Pelletier? What took place in the Grand Jury room binds Pelletier or Pelletier's deputies. It was the deputy's duty to present all facts and what took place there is the only proper evidence.

"The State purposes to show that the defendants conspired together to avoid indictment, and that they engaged two attorneys. The sole evidence to connect Pelletier is a letter from Attorney Corcoran, saying that he would like to have a hearing.

"The State is trying to show that Pelletier took Percy and Barry to the Grand Jury room in order to have them testify. There is no evidence that Pelletier was in the Grand Jury room when they testified. All the other evidence in the case is that the Grand Jury refused to indict.

"This does not link Pelletier with the crime. If Pelletier had the facts of the conspiracy in his mind, he could be charged with conspiracy, but this is not claimed.

Senator Reed then read from the Grand Jury records part of the testimony of Perry, in which Perry declared that he knew nothing whatever about the automobiles being stolen until June, 1918, when Suratt asked for a loan of $300.

When Perry refused the loan Suratt said that he would "get" Perry.

Senator Reed continued: "That is the story of the witness. It discloses no conspiracy. At the end of that testimony the Grand Jury rescinded the court's former action and did not bring in an indictment.

FORETEOLD BY CORCORAN.

"The only place the case touches Pelletier is when he took these men to the Grand Jury room. He was not present at the Grand Jury room. Assistant District Attorney Kinney asked all the questions.

Attorney-General Allen—"The Commonwealth is not adding a charge of conspiracy, but we are offering evidence, which is relevant to the 'improper motives' alleged in the information. We are showing that what transpired in the Grand Jury room was told to Perry by Corcoran, according to a previous arrangement.

"We will show that Innes was in the case, and that Corcoran and his associates received more than $15,000. We will show that the statement was made in the Grand Jury room that indictments were refused in Middlesex and Essex counties against the defendant, and that this statement was false."

The court adjourned to consider the motion.

Court was out an hour deliberating on the question. When the judges came back Chief Justice Rugg said:

MUST HAVE HAD EVIDENCE.

"The charges concerning which evidence has been offered come down to the issue of whether the respondent, District Attorney Pelletier, had in his possession or available sufficient evidence for prosecution of the accused (Perry et al) and from improper motives either failed to prosecute himself or failed to see that his assistants did.

"It must be shown that he had material evidence in his possession which he did not present to the Grand Jury in these cases and that he had personal knowledge of such evidence.

"Evidence of conspiracy to accomplish the end when having possession of evidence and failing to present it is competent and admissible on the main charge.

"Now, Mr. Attorney-General, is it your purpose to offer evidence to show that material, reasonable evidence was in the possession of the respondent and that he or his assistants failed to present it?"

Attorney-General Allen—All the witnesses in the Perry-Collamore-Barry cases had been called before the Suffolk Grand Jury on Tuesday, excepting Barry and Perry. We claim sufficient evidence was offered on Tuesday by Inspector Sheehan and the others for indictment.

FALSE STATEMENTS.

"We will show that on Friday the respondent, Pelletier, went before the Grand Jury with Perry and Barry and permitted them to make statements which were false and known to be false by Inspector Sheehan. Sheehan was available to contradict them.

"There was no attempt to introduce Inspector Sheehan before the Grand Jury. Yet he had all the facts and could have met these false statements. I am not arguing conspiracy as to Perry, Barry, Collamore and Suratt. I am offering evidence of conspiracy as affecting Pelletier, Corcoran and Innes.

"It is not necessary for the State to show conspiracy if we can show an arrangement between them which establishes improper motives.

"Before the trial the State could not fully set forth the accusations in this case because we did not know all of the evidence concerning the conspiracy offer until December 31."

Chief Justice Rugg—"Then, as the court understands from what you said, you propose to show that the respondent, having sufficient evidence in his possession, failed to use it himself, and failed to have his assistants use it.

Allen—"That is correct. We will show that indictments had been returned in Middlesex and that warrants on the Middlesex County indictments had been given Captain King at police headquarters in Boston for service, and Pelletier knewof it."

FOUGHT BY REED.

Senator Reed: "I move that this whole conspiracy matter be excluded. The Attorney-General says two witnesses were permitted before the Grand Jury, that their testimony was false, and that indictments had been returned in Middlesex. He does not claim Pelletier knew about these indictments.

"If there were indictments in other counties they would serve as the very best reason for not taking action in Suffolk. Counsel for the Commonwealth have made a general conspiracy charge here about money and about lawyers. I don't know the lawyers mentioned. I understand they are of high standing.

"I think the court ruling goes to the heart of the matter. That is, the State must prove he had this evidence personally and withdrew it."

Allen—"We call the court's attention to the talk that Sheehan had with Pelletier before the cases were presented in the Municipal Court, when Sheehan mentioned that indictments had been returned in Middlesex, but that he wished indictments in Suffolk County. If the respondent or his assistants had sufficient evidence on Tuesday, they had sufficient evidence on Friday. We claim that from improper motives this evidence was not offered."

RECALL PERRY.

Chief Justice Rugg—"What do you propose to do next, Mr. Attorney-General?"

Allen—"In view of this discussion I think I should recall the witness Perry and examine him on other matters and lay a foundation for these matters in dispute."

EX-EMPRESS ZITA IN PARIS UNDER GUARD

Paris, Jan. 10.—Former Empress Zita of Austria, who was exiled to Madeira with her husband because of the Royalist coup in Hungary, arrived here today en route for Switzerland to visit her young son, who is sick. She is closely guarded by French secret service agents to prevent communication with agents of the Hungarian monarchists.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Tells How to Darken Gray Hair With a Home-Made Mixture

Joicey Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."—Advertisement.

MEDBURY

Says More Men Have Wives Than Automobiles, Because the First Payment Isn't So Large.

The latest fad for motorists is to attach your wife's or your sweetheart's name to the radiator of your automobile. You've got to be careful whom you marry because a swell name wouldn't look well on a cheap car any more than a cheap name would look nice on a swell car.

This is a good fad because a lot of men change their wives as often as they do their machines.

When a man buys a used car he dodges. He couldn't put his first wife's name on a second-hand machine.

Of course more men have wives than automobiles because the first payment isn't as large.

A lot of motorists are putting their sweetheart's name on the bumper. One pedestrian got run over and had the word "Marguerite" embossed on his side.

He didn't care so much about that, only his wife's name was Mabel.

Then his wife got an automobile accident the next day and came home with the name "Harry" stamped on her arm.
her husband's name was Henry.

She had to go out and get run over seven times before she could get hit with the right name.

You can imagine the job she would have had if her husband's name had been Edelbert.

Still no man with a name like that would dare to put it on his car. It's hard enough as it is to make an automobile run, without any handicap.

One guy was so absent-minded that he hung his wife's age on the front of the car instead of the license.

One guy had his own picture on his car and his wife had her mother's picture on her car. The cars collided

She wasn't lucky either, because one day and that's the first time he and his mother-in-law ever kissed each other.

POLICE WARN SKATERS OF THIN ICE ON CHARLES

The Metropolitan Park Police today issued a warning to skaters to beware of thin spots on the Charles River. The thin spots are all plainly posted with warning signs, but despite this fact four persons have gone through in dangerous places during the past twenty-four hours. The names of those who took involuntary icy baths were Roger Whdley, a Harvard student; Archie P. Wilkes, a Tech student; Miss Dorothy Williams and a Marlboro street man named King, whose full name the police did not get. The ice on the basin is nearly a foot thick, but there are spots where warm springs make it thin and dangerous.

EAST BOSTON MAN DIES OF GAS POISONING

Giovanni Catrone, sixty years old, of No. 89 Orleans street, East Boston, was found dead in bed at his home early today, with gas escaping from a wall bracket. He was removed to the East Boston Relief Station and Medical Examiner Magrath notified. Death is believed to have been accidental.

NEWTON GIRL SEEKS $10,000 HEART BALM

Miss Florence Toombs of Newton filed in the East Cambridge court suit for $10,000 against Roger Johnson of Weston, charging him with breach of his promise to marry her.

Watch The Results!

Pimples, blackheads, boils, etc., begin to disappear almost "while you wait." You will feel an almost immediate increase in your ability to tackle hard work or play. And as for putting new, firm flesh on your bones—people report gaining from five to nine pounds on the first package of Ironized Yeast!

Nothing introduced in recent years has met with such overwhelming popularity as this great new tonic. People all over the country seem to have just "gone wild" over it. For they know that Ironized Yeast is one tonic that is guaranteed to make good—that will do everything that is claimed for it. The famous Three-Day Test will convince you!

Yeast Best With Iron

Ironized Yeast supplies thin and run-down folks with the three vitamines, which though vitally essential to health, are lacking in the modern diet. But more than that, it supplies your blood with the iron needed to make it rich, red and strong. Vitamines alone are fine—but when taken with iron, as in Ironized Yeast, they bring their good results just twice as quickly, in many cases.

If you want to banish skin eruptions and quickly acquire a fresh, youthful, clean-looking skin—if you are thin and run-down and want to fill out your figure with firm hard flesh and increase your energy so that work will be a pleasure instead of a tax—then try Ironized Yeast at once.

Just mail coupon below for the wonderful Three-Day FREE Trial Test. You will very likely be amazed at the improvement just three days will show in you. Test is absolutely FREE! Mail coupon today.

Important!

Ironized Yeast is pleasant to take and will not cause gas or in any way affect the stomach as it contains a specially cultured yeast which is grown under the strictest supervision for medicinal purposes. Each Ironized Yeast tablet wrapped air-tight and moisture proof in waxed sanitape when made, thus assuring 100% purity and strength. There is only one Ironized Yeast. $400,000 LOSS IN FIRE-SWEPT ASHLAND MILLS

Other Buildings Saved in Hard Battle; Town Has No Fire Engine

Ashland, Jan. 10.—A spectacular fire starting in No. 2 Mill of the Angier Mills here, early today, destroyed the four brick structures of the plant, communicated to a score of other buildings and caused a property loss estimated by Chief Engineer Fred E. Johnson at $400,000.

The Angier plant was used for waterproofing paper and there were hundreds of barrels of tar, oils, paraffin and other highly combustible materials in the works. A number of explosions occurred which drove the firemen back from their efforts to quench the flames and sent firebrands broadcast for a distance of a half a mile or more.

The fire was discovered early. The firemen say it could have been controlled if the town were equipped with fire-fighting apparatus.

The only fire engine owned by Ashland was condemned a year ago and has not been replaced by a new one.

Chief Johnson requested assistance from Natick, Framingham and Westboro.

By the time they arrived, however, the Angier works were doomed and the firemen bent their efforts to putting out roof fires all over the town, caused by firebrands dropping out of the sky.

The Congregational Church on Main street and a barn on Front street, a half-mile from the mills, were among the buildings saved by the firemen.

The plant of the Lombard Governor Company, consisting of four buildings adjacent to the Angier Mills, was on fire several times, but work on the part of Chief Johnson and his men saved these shops.

Puts Auto Screw in Mouth; Doctor Dies of Blood Poison

Lowell, Jan. 10.—Dr. George H. Jennison of East Merrimac street is dead from blood poison caused by putting a screw from an automobile in his mouth while he was repairing his car.

The screw came in contact with his tongue and blood poison set in. The tongue swelled to three times its normal size and a week later the doctor died. He was sixty years old and leaves a wife and five daughters.

SEEK IDENTITY OF PRETTY SUICIDE

Passenger Ended Her Life by Leap Under Wheels of Boston-Bound Train

Attleboro, Jan. 10. — Who is the beautiful, fair-haired girl passenger who hurled herself to death under a rapidly-moving Boston-bound train as it was passing through East Junction, south of here?

This question is puzzling the authorities, who have been unable to obtain any clew that would lead to the girl's identification or determine the motive for her act.

Medical Examiner Charles S. Holden, following a second and more thorough examination today, declared that the woman, who was about twenty-five years old, had undoubtedly committed suicide.

New Haven Railroad Towerman Charles Giles said he saw the woman walking along the tracks previous to the approach of the train. The body was found by Ambrosio Cirone, a section hand, five minutes after the train had passed.

Today's examination revealed the fact that the woman's chest had been crushed, all her left ribs broken, together with both shoulders and her left leg. The face was badly mutilated.

Despite the fact that he considered the woman a suicide, Medical Examiner Holden ordered a court inquest at which an official verdict will be reached. Because of the profusion of blond hair, the authorities are convinced that the victim was of Swedish nationality.

The victim of the tragedy was described as being about five feet four inches tall, weighing approximately 140 pounds, and with light hair. She wore a green-striped skirt, a green waist, a blue sweater and a black coat. There was no money in the young woman's pocketbook and her only personal effects consisted of a bundle of underclothing and a little packet of snapshots.

COUNCILORS GET CHICAGO PLAN OF LIGHTING

Big Saving for People Is Made Clear to Boston Visitors

By C. O. POWER

Chicago, Jan. 10.—The special Boston committee studying electric lighting put in a long and busy day in Chicago. The Deputy Commissioner of Public Works took the party in charge at 8 o'clock and escorted them to the Municipal Building. There they met commissioners and engineers from several departments having to do with street sanitary lighting and legal affairs.

With the exception of an hour for lunch most of the day was spent in the departmental offices studying plans, asking questions and listening to explanation of various phases of municipal lighting problem.

In the early evening the Boston officials were taken on a tour of important business and residental sections and shown different types of street lights in use. There are 2,300 miles of streets in Chicago. The city has charge of the lighting on the greater part of the streets, boulevards and parks.

MANY TYPES OF LAMPS.

Deputy Commissioner Henry Nixon of the Bureau of Gas and Electricity explained the various types of lamps that are used. The popular standard lamp is 600-candle power. It is the equivalent of the old flaming arc lamp, the popular style for street lighting for many years. These 600-candle power lamps cost the city $27.40 each per year. Mr. Nixon estimates that under the old arrangement with the private company they would cost about $61.19.

The electrical energy for Chicago street lighting is produced n the hydro-electric plant at the terminus of the Chicago drainage canal at Lockport. There is located the city's sewerage pumping station. Three 44,000-volt three-phase transmission lines on steel towers bring the energy to the sanitary district distributing station in the heart of the city, where it is reduced to 12,000 volts for distribution to city sub-stations through underground cables owned by the city.

STREETS WELL LIGHTED.

These sub-stations, from which series of street lighting circuits originate, are owned and operated by the city.

The standards of the municipal lighting department call for the operation of a 600-candle power lamp at every street intersection, at every intersection of a street with an alley, and sufficient additional lamps so that no length of a street more than 350 feet shall be without a lamp in business districts. This distance is reduced to 250 feet.

The city contracts for the operation of several thousand gas and gasoline lamps in those parts of the city where electric lighting facilities are not available.

The Boston committee leaves Chicago for Detroit loaded down with Chicago data on municipal electric lighting, particularly street lighting.

Councillor Henry E. Hagan of Boston, who is here attending the convention of the National Retail Shoe Dealers' Association, sat in with his colleagues at the hotel sessions Sunday night and last night. The Chicago city officials took great pains to be helpful and courteous to the Boston officials

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Vincent Club Play Composer Resumes Paris Studies

By BETTY ALDEN.

WORD has just come from abroad that Mary Forbes Atkinson of Brookline, after a visit in the south of France, has resumed her vocal studies in Paris with Theodor Bjorksten.

Boston society has not seen much of Miss Atkinson the past two years, for this is the second Winter which she has elected to remain in the capital of France, where, besides studying music, she is continuing her studies in painting and French. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Atkinson of "Heath Hill," Brookline, have also been abroad a good deal of the time with their talented young daughter, who made her debut about three years ago.

All society recalls the pronounced hit which the clever play, "Satni," made when it was given two years ago by the Vincent Club. Needless to say, Miss Atkinson, as the writer of "Satni," swung into the limelight of success, and her host of friends expect many things from her. I believe that during Miss Atkinson's stay in Paris this Winter her younger brother, Harry Atkinson, will remain abroad with his sister.

"Satni," by the way, took the form of an Oriental romance, in which the fair Vincent Club members danced their way from London to Cairo. As I remember it, this delightful operetta concerned itself with a beautiful English girl, kidnapped from her parents and the subsequent search for her through the mysterious haunts of Cairo. Of course, the heorine was very nicely rescued—all by means of a song—"Satni," which was known only to the girl. To Mrs. George von L. Meyer, Jr., went the credit for writing the lyrics for the play, which was acclaimed as a distinct success, and added most materially to the fund for the Vincent Memorial Hospital.

The members of the cast included the Misses Elizabeth Burgess Harriet Amory, Frances Howell, Sybil Appleton, Marjorie Kennard, Lousia Hoar, Susan Sturgis and Rosamond Adie as well as Mesdames Jonh E. Thayer, James Minot Jr., (Miriam Sears), Mrs. Nevil Ford and Mrs. Reggie Foster (Frances Hoar).

One of the features of "Satni" was the cigarette drill, which was composed of the following Vincentites: Mrs. Augustus Thorndike, Jr., Eleanor Abbott, Katherine Abbott, Mrs. J. Thayer Addison, Elizabeth Burgess, Pauline Fenno, Cornelia Fiske, Barbara Foster, Miriam Ladd, Elsie Nichols, Elizabeth Zerrahn, Mrs. Thomas R. Morse (Eleanor Whitney) and Katherine Lane.

Among those who took the "men" parts in the show were Penelope Curtis, Hope Gaston, Lousia Weld, Rosamond Lamb, Ellen Curtis and Mrs. Alexander Wheeler (Agnes Grew).

The Boston colony sojourning at Palm Beach is increasing steadily. Among the recent arrivals at the popular Winter resort are included Mrs. Hobart Ames, who has arrived for the season at The Breakers; also at The Breakers is Mrs. Horace Soule of Walnut street, Brookline; another Boston arrival at the same hotel is Charles Beacon.

Additional arrivals include Mr. and Mrs. George E. Barnard of 'Riverbend Farm,' Ipswich, and Mrs. Charles A. Munn of Washington and the North Shore, who came accompanied by her son, Gurnee Munn, and is at a seaside cottage of The Breakers group. Miss Mary Brown Warburton of Philadelphia will join Mrs. Munn and her son at the Florida resort sometime this week.

Fishing, bathing and golfing continue to stand out as the chief diversions at Palm Beach. The tackle and bait houses are situated conveniently out on the Breakers pier for those who care to fish. Recently a number of pompano, a very choice fish, were caught by some clever anglers.

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and County

MANY Americans have left Paris to pass the Winter at various Mediterranean resorts. Included in this group is Donald Morrison Smith of Boston, who has arrived at the Hotel des Anglais in Cannes.

The President and Mrs. Harding were entertained at dinner last night by Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes, the party being the first of the series to be given for the President and his wife by members of the Cabinet.

Mrs. Charles F. Aldrich of Beacon street and Dublin, N. H., has arrived at the Hobkirk Inn in Camden, South Carolina. At the same hotel is James A. Richards, also of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Hamlin and their daughter, Miss Anna Hamlin of Boston and Washington, were among the spectators in Hamilton, Bermuda, at the annual horse race held recently at Shelley Bay. The affair was a distinct success, and during the interval the cliffs overlooking the North Shore were lined with luncheon parties.

Miss Helen Frick of New York, who is well known along the Massachusetts North Shore, made a brief stay over the week-end at her home in Mount Kisco, New York.

Mrs. Hollis H. Hunnewell of "Hill Hurst," Wellesley, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Frederick Neilson, at the latter's home in New York. Mrs. Neilson gave a luncheon at the Plaza at which her guests included her two daughters, Mrs. Hunnewell and Mrs. J. Sydney Colford, Jr.; Mr. Colford, her granddaughter, Miss Cathleen Vanderbilt, and Cecil Lyon.

Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson of "Weld," Brokline, are due to arrive at their Washington home on Massachusetts avenue, this week, where they will remain until Spring.

MRS. STILLMAN CUT OFF FROM CIVILIZATION

Travels by Dog Sled Into Far Reaches of North to Her Camp at St. Anse

La Toque, Que., Jan. 10.—After an all-day trip by dog sled into the frozen north country Mrs. Anne U. Stillman was expected to reach her snow camp at St. Anse before dusk. Up the banks of the St. Maurice where she will remain until her return Friday to Montreal to appear in the Canadian hearings of her husband's divorce suit, all communication from her lodge to the outside world is cut off.

As she jumped into a waiting sleigh here she gave orders to "drive fast down the trail" and prepared to travel alone "to think and tune up my soul." Following her at hourly intervals were dog sleds carrying Philip J. O'Brien, Fred Beauvais and newspaper men.

They had arranged to find accommodations with Father Damphouse, the youthful priest from whom the few persons within a radius of ten miles of his camp get spiritual guidance.

Besides resting during her brief stay at St. Anse, Mrs. Stillman will talk with a dozen or more witnesses whose testimony will be given at the Montreal hearings.

Although wearied by the strain of her trip, the poor hotels and the work involved prior to the divorce trial, Mrs. Stillman continues cheerful and confident. Her return to civilization and the defence of her own name as well as Baby Guy's will open another chapter in the fight which is all-important to her, and in which she anticipates victory.

ITALIAN SHIPS FOR ITALIAN EMIGRANTS

Rome, Jan. 10.—An order issued the foreign office prohibiting Italian emigrants to the United States to travel in any but Italian vessels provides that, "foreign companies will still be able to avail themselves of the transport of Italian passengers making the return voyage, or Italians in other than emigrant classes, or of foreign passengers."

Besides limiting the emigrants to Italian ships, the declaration restricts the choice to such ships as the emigration commissioner "deems adapted to this service."

DEATH IN PORTLAND OF AMMI WHITNEY AT 89

Portland, Me., Jan. 10.—Ammi Whitney, who has been engaged in the seed and agricultural implements trade since 1858, died today at the age of eighty-nine. He had extensive real estate holdings, was financiallly interested in banks, loans and building associations and publice utilities, and was reputed to be a millionaire.

HARDING DENIES BOSTON BID FOR LEVIATHAN

Inability to Make Definite "Price for Service" Given as Reason

By Associated Press.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Inability of the Boston Navy Yard to submit a definite bid for the reconditioning of the steamship Leviathan precludes any plan to have the work done there, President Harding today notified Representative Dallinger, Republican, Massachusetts, who recently made such a proposal.

The President, in a letter to Mr. Dallinger, said that, while he would be "very sympathetic with the proposition to assign this work to the Boston yard, if I could consistently do so under the law," he had been "well assured there is no way possible in which to permit the Boston Navy Yard to make a definite price for this service."

CITES VARIATION.

"I have before me the bids which were submitted by private contractors," the President's letter stated, "and I get a variation in these bids amounting to approximately $5,000,000. If the Shipping Board should have the Leviathan reconditioned without a definite bid and the cost should run to the larger figure of the bids submitted, such action on the part of the Shipping Board would never be excused.

"I really do not find myself able to be helpful in designating the work in accordance to your suggestion. I think it is fair to assume that the government yards at Boston ought to do this work as cheaply as any other yard, but there is no way by which we can learn the cost in advance at the government yard at Boston and we do know precisely what we are called upon to pay under an award to a contracting concern."

DALLINGER'S CONTENTION.

Mr. Dallinger had appealed to the President to use his influence to have the work done at Boston, so that the skeleton organization of the government yard there might be retained. Dallinger contended the work could be done as cheaply there as elsewhere and told the President the Boston drydock was the only one on the Atlantic coast large enough to accommodate the Leviathan.

In his letter of reply, Mr. Harding said it was "entirely desirable to retain the skeleton organization," at Boston, but that "it is also necessary to retain some of our private shipbuilding yards, if we are to hope to have any yards at the service of our merchant marine in the future."

"Manifestly, the reconditioning of the Leviathan will contribute as much to the reduction of unemployment in one locality as another," the President said.

CUSTOMS HOUSE FILLED WITH CHRISTMAS MAIL

Washington, Jan. 10.—Thousands of Christmas packages from foreign countries are cluttering up postoffices of the United States because of the failure of addresses to make declaration through the Customs House. The New York office alone reports 7,500 such parcels on hand. Incoming steamers are adding to the accumulations. Postmaster-General Hays today sent out a distress call to the owners to make the necessary declaration.

To Put on Good Firm Flesh and Round Out Your Face and Figure

Get a FREE $1.00 Package of Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets Today as Explained Below—Try Them for Ten Days and Watch the Results

Science has at last shown how we sometimes grow weak, thin, and emaciated on an abundance of food (lacking in vitamines) while with a much smaller amount of food, rich in vitamines, we may quickly take on good firm flesh, increase in weight, and make a remarkable gain in strength, energy and endurance, provided your blood contains sufficient quantity of oxygenated organic iron to enable your body to assimilate your food properly.

Without organic iron both food and vitamines are absolutely useless as your body cannot change lifeless inert food matter into living cells and tissue unless you have plenty of organic iron in your blood.

For centuries scientists tried in vain to make organic iron. At last the problem was solved so that you may now obtain pure organic iron like the iron in your blood from any druggist under the name of "Nuxated Iron."

It has been arranged to give every purchaser of Nuxated Iron, who wishes to put on flesh or increase weight, a large regular $1.00 package of Genuine Yeast Vitamine Tablets absolutely free. Be sure to take only Nuxated Brand Yeast Vitamine Tablets with Nuxated Iron. Do not be mislead by imitations which often contain drugs.

LEADERS IN JEWISH DRIVE IN CAUSE OF CHARITY

JEWISH CHARITY DRIVE IS ON FOR $400,000

Team Captains Make First Report Tomorrow at City Club

Boston Jewry have been called upon by the Federated Jewish Charities to contribute to a $400,000 fund for the poor and needy of their race.

The first meeting of the workers in the ten-day campaign which was opened yesterday will be tomorrow noon at the Boston City Club, where first reports will be received from team captains. Teams will be sent among the workers in the Jewish trades, professions and business, asking contributions.

The appeal is benig made on the basis of service rendered by the Federation and to save the Federated Jewish Charities from closing its doors.

"We want to make this the supreme accomplishment in the history of local Jewish charity," said Louis E. Kirstein, general chairman of the campaign and its directing genius.

"We are resolved, through this campaign, to place all of the splendid agencies supported by the Federated Jewish Charities on a sound financial basis—to uphold the cherished traditions of the Jewish people that none among us shall ever want, or remain ill, or in any way suffer because of the lack of funds or medical assistance.

"This is more than a purely local undertaking. The eyes of the country's Jews are upon us. Communities everywhere are watching our progress, for to outsiders the Federated Jewish Charities is considered a model of constructive philanthropy.

"And this reputation we must sustain.

"The Federated Jewish Charities is today the largest and leading communal activity of the Jews of Boston, and whether we will or no, we are judged by it and its work. We may talk of doing things for our own families as much as we want, but the imperious demands of necessity force us to do for others as well. We must be anxious and ready and willing to help those who cannot help themselves."

The officers of the campaign are Louis E. Kirstein, chairman; Louis Baer, E. J. Brody, S. S. Conrad, Carl Dreyfus, Julius Eisemann, A. W. Kaffenburg, D. A. Lourie, A. A. Rosenbush, Nathan Sallinger, Leon Strauss, Ferdinand Strauss and Nathan Pinanski.

3 ARRESTED FOR SHOOTING OF PATROLMAN

One of Accused Found Lying in Bed With Bullet Wound

Three men, arrested by the South Boston police in a Tudor street rooming house, are being held on suspicious person charges in connection with the shooting Sunday night of Patrolman Michael Curran.

One of the men, James J. Foley, nineteen years old, is at the City Hospital under a heavy guard. He was found lying in bed with a bullet wound in his hip, and is believed by the police to have been shot by Patrolman O'Connor, who came to Curran's rescue when the latter was set upon by five gangsters.

The other two suspects are Joseph Kasney, twenty-two years old, of C street, South Boston, and Leo Downey, twenty years old, of Tudor street, South Boston.

NELSON GIVEN DIVORCE BY JUDGE FOX

End of Sensational Case of Everett Couple in East Cambridge Court

Karl Nelson of Everett was today granted a divorce from Mrs. Effie M. Nelson of Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, by Judge Fox in the Superior Court at East Cambridge.

Nelson charged misconduct with Charles Robertson, an ex-service man, and much of the testimony was of a sensational nature.

The case was taken under advisement yesterday by Judge Fox, after Mrs. Nelson, who stubbornly contested the case, had testified in her own behalf. Decision was announced at the opening of the divorce court today.

Mrs. Nelson made a vigorous denial of statements testified to by her husband's witnesses. Then she sobbed: "My husband loves me now. He sees me often. He sends me flowers. We lunched together recently. I want him to come back and he would come back if it were not for the influence an old man has over him."

BUTTERFLY Babs Van Buren steadied herself on the seat in front of her. Her voice rose above the suddenly hushed courtroom. "By Jove, Judge Grant's sister-in-law," some one at the table murmured. Like a wireless the message hissed round the room—"It's the judge's own sister, Barbara Van Buren. I'll say—some scandal."

Then speaking low but unwavering she pinned her butterfly soul to the wall of notoriety and crucified it then for all to see. "I don't count now. I mustn't think what this will mean to me. If Dean Cardigan won't tell, I must. I can tell you where Dean Cardigan was from 10 to 5 the next morning"—

Was the Roman Rhapsody WRITTEN by a OUIJA BOARD?

"Sarishan, Sister! Get out the gypsy story you began a long time ago. We will finish it for you!"

From that point the Ouija Board took up an old unfinished story precisely where Elizabeth Herrick, well-known short story writer had stopped. There came many gypsy words she had never heard, but later she verified them.

Did Miss Herrick's imagination subconsciously control the Ouija Board or—as she believes—did some actual gypsy intelligence somehow give the story to her? What do you think?

Word for word—with glossary of the strange gypsy words the author had never read or heard spoken before—it is printed in this issue of Cosmopolitan.

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonsful of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.

COX URGED TO APPOINT DRUG COMMISSION

William S. Briry, assistant appraiser of the port of Boston and former member of the State Board of Registration and Pharmacy, today concludes his series of articles on the drug peril with the recommendation that a commission be appointed by Governor Cox to investigate the narcotic situation. He urges that a State department be established to supervise enforcement of the law and provide adequate treatment for drug addicts.

By WILLIAM S. BRIRY.

The opium peril has grown to such large proportions in Massachusetts during the past few years that it is menacing our State and nation. Efforts to suppress the illicit drug traffic have not kept pace with the rapid growth of the evil.

It would be well to have a State commission appointed to investigate the situation and make recommendations for dealing with the peril. At present there is no centralized control of the drug traffic. The work is divided up, with many departments charged with enforcing certain phases of the law.

All of this work could be put in charge of one department, which would oversee enforcement of the law and look after the unfortunate victims of this evil.

NO STATE SUPERVISION.

There is no State supervision of the numerous hospitals in our State, with respect to narcotics. Drug addicts must be given special treatment. They have a disease which is worse in its effects than any other. The pain suffered by a drug slave is the most torturous; they are driven wild by it.

Yet there is no adequate provision for treating them here. We send them to the State Hospital at Tewksbury. They are doing their best there, but their resources are not ample. All of this could be investigated by the special commission, which would serve without pay.

The New England States should act as a unit in dealing with the drug evil. While good laws would be welcome here, unless they were uniform they would not be of the fullest avail.

With Canada bordering on our New England coast, huge quantities of the deadly poison comes over the border illicitly. It is smuggled in by water, and large quantities come from New York.

At present there is no State body to look after the 1,100 persons who have narcotic permits in our State. Ten thousand persons is the total of all classes having licenses to have morphine, opium, heroin or cocaine, and how many have it illegally no one knows.

DEPORT ALIEN PEDLARS.

Most pitiful cases have been called to the attention of the Legislature at State House hearings. Think of paying $85 for 437 grains of morphine to a well-to-do "dope" pedlar, who had to get it from another dealer. The pedlar makes $80 profit on one sale.

Drug slaves will do anything to get the price of the drug, and the pedlars would not let them have a smell, unless they had money to pay for it.

A case of a man, who was not a citizen, and could not speak English, I recall. He was given a permit to import opium at Boston two years ago. Did he realize what he was doing, other than to make money? Certainly not. But there are many such cases.

A bill to oblige every one to get a State license was killed because of too much opposition from a pharmaceutical house in Boston, which was supplying 4,000 doctors with narcotics. Their attorney complained that it would be too much trouble for them.

Every alien caught selling "dope" should be deported. There are many of them in the traffic, and some good would result if they were sent back to their home countries.

Were you ever embarrassed? If so, cash in on it. See the "Embarrassed Column" in the Boston Daily Advertiser every day.

EXPECT BRITONS TO INDORSE FRENCH PACT

Cannes Council Await Indorsement of Agreement Made by Briand and Lloyd George

Cannes, France, Jan. 10 (By the Associated Press)—Notification of endorsement by the British Cabinet of the written pledge binding Great Britain immediately to aid France to the full extent of her military and naval resources in case of aggression by Germany is expected from London by tonight. The pact, agreed upon by Premiers Briand and Lloyd George was telegraphed to the British capital last night.

The council planned to recess today until 5 p. m., while a sub-committee engages in the delicate task of framing an invitation to the forthcoming international financial and economic conference to a country which has already formally accepted. The Russian Soviet government in its eagerness to be represented at the Genoa meeting sent a regular acceptance to the council's tentative query if an invitation would be acceptable under certain conditions.

Meanwhile the French delegation is awaiting results of consultations in Paris regarding settlement of the German reparations question. The program agreed upon by the experts here provides for payment in 1922 of 720,000,000 gold marks and at least an equal sum annually thereafter.

The Supreme Council is to discuss this matter with a German delegation, headed by Dr. Walter Rathenau, which is expected to arrive from Berlin tomorrow.

The council plans to impress upon the German delegates the fact that the allies cannot longer tolerate disorder in Germany's finances. The French have proposed that the allies appoint a commission to take charge of the German debt in case she defaults in the reparations payments.

JUST THE THING FOR A SORE THROAT

WHAT you call "just a sore throat" may in a few days turn out to be something much more serious. With every breath you inhale infectious germs, and the soft tissues of the throat form an ideal soil for their growth and spread, possibly resulting in laryngitis, tonsillitis, influenza.

Always have handy the convenient-to-take, pleasant tasting, yet powerfully antiseptic Formamint Tablets. Dissolve one in the mouth now and then, slowly, freeing an efficient antiseptic that mixes with the saliva, and continuously bathes the infected membranes, checking germ life. Children like them. Relieves hoarseness.

Especially effective for singers, speakers, smokers, lecturers, etc. 60¢ at all druggists.

POSTHUMOUS HONORS FOR MARQUIS OKUMA

Tokio, Jan. 10 (by the Associated Press)—Marquis Okuma, who died early today, has been given posthumous honors by Emperor Yoshihito. He is given court rank, junior grade and is decorated with the grand cordon of the chrysanthemum with collar, in recognition of his services for the State.

RUSSIAN SOVIET ASKS GERMAN RECOGNITION

Berlin, Jan. 10—Formal request for recognition by Germany was made by the Russian Soviet government today. Russia proposed the mutual cancellation of all war claims.

HEAR YE! KEEP OFF THE GRASS IN PI ALLEY!

Pi Alley, sometimes known as Williams court, the narrow passage leading from Washington street toward the City Hall Annex, is today adorned with several notices in full legal verbiage informing all and sundry who pass through the famous shot cut that it is private property.

Once in twenty years it is necessary, according to Chapter 187 of the General Laws of Massachusetts, to tell the public that Pi Alley belongs to the Sumner Company, affiliated with a nearby spa, and that no one else may enjoy a right of way over it.

YOUNG WOMAN RESCUED FROM GRAVE OF BABY

Marlboro, Jan. 10.—Half dead from iodine poisoning and cold on the grave of her baby in Brigham cemetery Mrs. Lillian Hoffman, twenty-five years old, was discovered by mere chance by a passer-by, rushed to the Marlboro Hospital, and may recover. When she regained consciousness she expressed disappointment and said she wanted to "join her child." She did not deny drinking iodine. The baby died last Summer of the sleeping sickness.

RAILWAY BOARD TAKES UP DEMANDS OF CLERKS

Chicago, Jan. 10.—(By Associated Press)—Extra pay for overtime work and the eight-hour day were the principal points sought by railroad clerks in controversies over the rules of the clerks' national agreement which were up for consideration by the United States Labor Board today. Promulgation of a new set of rules to replace the agreement made under Federal control is looked for by February 1.

EVICTED FRENCH RUGMAKER CLAIMS HE IS RELATIVE OF NAPOLEON

DID You Ever Catch ickled Herring? Albert heeler, a N. Y. fish deal-, says catching pickled od is great sport. While rting out a load of cod-h from New England heeler found several zen stuffed with a quart whiskey. Here he is with "sacred cod." (International.)

A SLAVIC ROSE! Mme. Kousnezoff, at right, is declared to be the most beautiful of all the Russian refugees in London. Brilliant linguist and very popular in the British capital. (International.)

SKELETON RATTLES! M. Louis Napoleon Eugene Maximillian Le Rent Masson, a rug-maker of Clethay, France, was evicted. During the court proceedings it was brought to light that Masson claimed to be a descendant of Napoleon, his grandmother, he declared, having been the common law wife of the Emperor while he was campaigning against the English in Clethay.

HERE'S AN INVENTION TO BLOW ABOUT! We used to blow so sweetly into a cornet, but it always came out so rotten. Atrocious Sunday morning cornet playing may now be eliminated by the new mechanical cornet, invented by Private Jowett of the British army. A roll of perforated paper provides the "mechanical fingering"—just the same as a player piano.

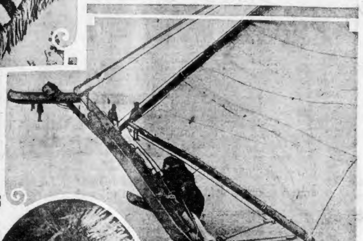
GHT AS A FEATHER And Twice ute! Milady has a wide choice in selection of her Spring lingerie his flesh colored silk combination of the smartest of them all. De-its sheerness the garment is sur-gly warm. (Bain.)

ENRY L. CADENHEAD f Greenville, Miss., who testified before Senate ommittee that he saw 0 American soldiers anged while in France, 4 of whom were white. oldiers were forced to vitness hanging, he declared. (Underwood.)

ONE OF NEW ENGLAND'S PRETTIEST! Miss Edith Harrington, 212 Tremont st., Newton, is awarded $5 in the Pretty Motorist Test. This makes 3 beauty prizes for her within 7 months. No pictures will be entered after Jan. 15.

MISS RUTH VINCENT, Denver's only policewoman, who is now in the East, disputes Eastern judge's charge that girls lie more than boys. They don't if the court proceedings are private, she says. (Underwood.)

SNAPPY BUT CLEAN! Turkish towels of gorgeous colored stripes, sometimes to match the bathing suits, are quite the thing on the Pacific coast. Miss Ruthelme Stevens of Los Angeles is one of the pioneers of the fad. (International.)

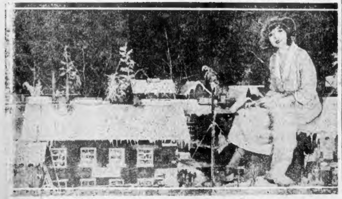


BEGONE, TIPPY CANOE! Here's a sport as thrilling as flying a plane. Gladys Shropshire is one of the most expert ice skippers in New Jersey and almost any day will find her skimming over the ice on the Shrewsbury river, (N. J.) at 60 to 80 miles an hour.

A YOUNG MAN'S THOUGHTS, ETC! Referring to Spring and the hat—not the young lady. A sunburst of feathers on a straw turban of odd design combine to form a smart chapeau. An exclusive Spring advance fashion (Underwood.)

HAROLD S. NOICE, 22, of Seattle, Wash., America's youngest explorer, has returned home after 6 years in the Arctic. Knew nothing about war until just before Armistice. Ran across "lost" Stefansson expedition. (International.)

TEASING THE UNDERTAKER! This automobile turned over and over and landed in this position with three persons in it on the Speedway Road in Washington. Why they were not instantly killed is remarkable. However, they suffered severe injuries. (Underwood.)



ITTLE OLD NEW ENGLAND! And pretty Madge Bellamy, the filmite, seems to be sitting on a part of it. resourcefulness of the moving picture producers is without bound. It would be rather difficult to make one of New England in the Winter out in sun-kissed California, so the movie people build a scene and cenic and climatic fidelity is remarkable. This Puritan village, only about two feet high, is the work icholas Kalenstadler, a scenic artist of note. Santa Claus plays an important part in this scene, too.

A "CHIP" ON HER SHOULDER! This well balanced young lady is not only beautiful but she is said to be the strongest of her sex in the world. She has been astounding Europe with her feats of strength. Here she is balancing a field gun. We are assured that it is a genuine gun, too. (Underwood.)

THE FASTEST THINGS IN GERMANY! These speed demons of road and sky thrilled Berlin the other day and although the plane won, the automobile gave the large wayside audience more than one heart throb. Lo Hell drove the car and Unge, Germany's premier flier, piloted the plane. (Wide World.)

A REG'LAR FELLA!! A Hoboken, N. J., fire truck ran over Walter Casler, 14, and one of his legs had to be amputated. The firemen heard him ask Santa for a new leg, so they "chipped in" and bought him one costing $300. Just as good as his own, he says. (International.)

"WHY WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY"

Because: EVERY LOT ADVERTISED is priced at practically no profit for "WEDNESDAY and THURSDAY" only.
EVERY LOT ADVERTISED is dependable quality and must measure up to our standards.
EVERY LOT ADVERTISED for these two-day sales must be timely and desirable.
EVERY LOT ADVERTISED must be the biggest value of its kind to be found in New England on these days.

Our Reasons: The increased volume of business helps in turning our stocks. It encourages mid-week shopping—thus tending to equalize the daily sales. This, in turn, helps to stabilize our selling force, and, most important of all, it attracts new customers to the store.

EDISON LIGHT HEAD SCORED AT HEARING

Boston American Counsel to Grill Expert Regarding Cause of High Rates

A vigorous attack upon President Charles L. Edgar of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company for his failure to know why the people of Boston are charged higher rates for electricity than the people of other big cities of the country was made by Corporation Counsel Arthur D. Hill at the rate hearing before the State Department of Public Utilities.

Chairman Henry C. Attwill of the department also attacked the company for its hesitancy to summons its "experts" to the public hearings to explain just what theory they have, if any, for imposing their high and intricate system of rates on the consumers.

Mr. Hill also demanded that a total of $341,000, which the company carries in its "plant account" and on which the people of Greater Boston pay dividends of 12 per cent., year after year, be stricken from the company's books.

AGGREGATE THOUSANDS.

Mr. Hill said that the items which he attacked are in many instances ridiculously low, but that in the aggregate they amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars. These items should have been paid for out of the current revenue of the Edison, he said, and never should have been credited to the "plant account," in which they stand as a permanent liability, on which the people are asked to pay an annual dividend.

Samuel H. Mildram, one of the city of Boston experts, brought out that one of the charges in the "plant account" is $41.50 for photographs. The company charged $500 for grading and seeding the land at the L Street property and put that expenditure into the "plant account" as a permanent investment, on which the people would pay dividends.

"I suppose your thought is that grass seed doesn't produce much electricity?" said Chairman Attwill.

"Exactly," replied Mr. Mildram.

The sum of $400 for rebuilding a fence, $50 for changing a telephone from one room to another, $400 for relettering the office doors, $2.50 for moving a clock, $600 for wires that were bought and subsequently returned without being used, $510 for fixing up a house for a tenant and $1,100 for moving a building were some of the items which Mildram said stand as permanent fixtures on which the people are asked to pay dividends.

CHARGED COST OF LABOR.

"You figure," said Chairman Attwill, "that the building they moved was no better in one place than in another?"

"What they actually did," said Mildram, "was to charge into that 'plant account' the cost of the labor to move that building."

Mildram said that $22,000 was charged in the "plant account" as the value of Stanhope street property that is leased by the company to others for a garage, and about $700,000 for its real-handling property, which is leased to another firm. Mildram said the Edison ought not to be collecting dividends from the people on property from which they receive another profit in the form of leases.

He said the Edison sold $50,000 of conduits to the Consolidated Gas Company but only charged off $15,000 in the "plant account."

Mildram said that the total reductions demanded by Mr. Hill of $341,000 was only for the ten-year period ending in 1910, and, at that, represented only one of the many lines of accounts on the Edison's books. A force of city experts is still at work on the books.

PRESIDENT EDGAR ILL.

Granville S. MacFarland, counsel for the Boston American, who had conducted a day's investigation of President Edgar's knowledge of the conditions which cause the people of Boston to pay rates so much higher than those charged in other cities, especially where they have municipally-owned lighting plants, said he was ready to continue with the examination of Mr. Edgar. Attorney F. Manley Ives, representing the Edison, said, however, that Mr. Edgar was ill and might not be able to attend a hearing for at least two weeks.

Mr. Hill demanded that Mr. Knight, said to be the company's expert, who made up the Edison's rate theory, be produced by the company for examination. Chairman Attwill said the department is without authority to issue a summons for Mr. Knight. Mr. Hill asked Mr. Ives to produce him. Mr. Ives said he wanted to handle the Edison witnesses in his own way.

"If I am ready to call your expert as my first witness, you certainly ought not to be afraid," said Hill.

ANSWERS BLIND.

Mr. Ives said Mr. MacFarland had propounded the Edison with all sorts of interrogatories to find out what the theory of rate-making is and the questions have been answered.

"We haven't got anything yet," said Mr. Hill, "that shows your theory of making rates. We have been utterly unable to ascertain what the theory or system is. They were the blindest set of answers I have ever seen. They were the most skillful and ingenious evasion of any answers I have ever come across."

Mr. Ives said he would put on Mr. Knight as an expert on rates after he had talked over the situation again with Mr. Knight.

"If he doesn't know any more about it than Mr. Edgar, I am afraid we won't get very far," said Mr. Hill.

Chairman Attwill said he felt the Edison ought to be glad to come forward with its witnesses. "Here is a great city," he said, "interested in its rates. Your company ought to have no interest except to pay a reasonable dividend to its shareholders and to provide for the comfort, happiness and convenience of the people. If the rates can be criticized, you would be the first to change them, wouldn't you?"

"Yes," said Mr. Ives.

It was agreed that Mr. MacFarland tomorrow morning will begin an investigation of Mr. Wallis, a company expert on rates, and that Mr. Knight will be produced by Mr. Ives next Monday morning if Mr. MacFarland's examination of Mr. Wallis is completed by that time. The hearing tomorrow forenoon will begin at 10:30 o'clock.

WANDERING JEW IN WONDERFUL SETTING

Belasco-Erlanger Drama at Hollis Well Acted by Strong Cast

By FRED J. McISAAC
Dramatic Editor

[illegible] in the hats and seducing [illegible] women

TAKES ISSUE WITH LEGEND.

[illegible] forgave him [illegible]

[illegible] For pity [illegible] Not for [illegible] Christian [illegible] Not for Christians, because mediaeval Christianity is not too favorably presented. The bare admission that Christ had the power to send a Jew wandering about the world for fifteen hundred years is more than any Orthodox [illegible]

POWER'S ACTING REMARKABLE.

The best thing about this drama, aside from the really wonderful set [illegible]

CAST IS STRONG.

[illegible] as the Jew's wife in his [illegible] period, was very effective [illegible] now at the back and was poorly described. The Crusading period was crude melodrama, but the last two acts were good play writing. As far as I was concerned they might have omitted the scene showing the Jew being burned at the stake. Since they didn't have anybody to ride in to the rescue "a la Griffith" I would have preferred to have that happen off stage like the Crucifixion and the tournament in the second act.

This Expose Ought to Convince Everybody

By PHILIP FRANCIS.

The revelations made by the representatives of the Far East Republic were a startling New Year's gift to our innocent and guileless State Department.

It was positively unkind to disturb the harmony of the [illegible] New Year by handing to the press the documents which [illegible] French and Japanese delegations had arrived at a secret understanding to stand by one another in robbing Russia, [illegible] frustrating American trade with Russia, preventing American [illegible] of trade with China and making the [illegible] proposals a failure.

It was also equally unkind to expose the secret assurance of the French [illegible] Office to Japan that France would make [illegible] representations to the British Government, so that [illegible] plans would not find that government [illegible]

There is no doubt about the authenticity of the protocols [illegible] thus suddenly disclosed. And there ought not to be any further doubt in the mind of any Senator, Congressman or any other sensible American that we are dealing at Washington with the same lying, treacherous, [illegible] diplomacies that have always administered the affairs of England, France and Japan, precisely as the same kind administered the affairs of the former Russian, German and Austrian Empires.

The Hearst papers have constantly insisted that these diplomats gathered in Washington were all professional liars, unable to speak or to deal honestly, and only there in the hope of being able to cheat our simple-minded amateur negotiators.

Now, [illegible] suddenly and dramatically brought to [illegible] secret agreements, in which the conspirators convict themselves of treachery and falsehood and cheating from the very first hour the conference was mentioned, and we hope [illegible] proof enough to convince even simple minds that the only thing for our America to do is to avoid such governments [illegible] American affairs, keeping a hand on a ready gun while she works at and minds her own business.

Plays That Remain

COLONIAL THEATRE—Fred Stone in his musical extravaganza, "Tip Top," began the sixth week of his engagement at the Colonial Theatre last evening. There has never been an engagement he has played in this city which has proved so completely a success, and since its opening absolute capacity houses have ruled.

SHUBERT THEATRE — "Irene" will celebrate its 100th performance in Boston Monday evening next at the Shubert Theatre by the presentations of tokens celebrating the event. It is a dainty souvenir which will delight the heart of the feminine shopper, the girl in business and the girl in society alike. The third week of [illegible] popular musical comedy [illegible] with the customary [illegible] attendance.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—William Hodge, in his great comedy success, "Dog Love," started on the third week of his Boston engagement at the Plymouth Theatre last evening [illegible] the theatre to the utmost. This star has never been received more popularly in Boston than on this visit.

TREMONT THEATRE — D. W. Griffith's masterful motion picture spectacle "Orphans of the Storm," is smashing all box office records at the Tremont Theatre, where it is being shown twice daily. In the matter of receipts it is far ahead of any other Griffith offering here in a comparative time.

SELWYN THEATRE—It has been decided by A. H. Woods to close the engagement of "Happy Go Lucky" at the Selwyn Theatre in two weeks, bringing the successful run of this [illegible] play featuring O. P. Heggie to an end Saturday, [illegible]

CROWDS STORM MOLLER'S FIRE SALVAGE SALE

The remarkable power of advertising was amply demonstrated yesterday when thousands of people waited to the opening of the doors of C. B. Moller [illegible] in response to the an[illegible] Fire Salvage Sale. The police department [illegible] the doors were locked after the first onslaught but still crowds waited outside during the entire morning and afternoon hoping to be admitted.

The advance advertising started in the Boston American and other newspapers last week. Owing to the bulk of the furniture, and the fact that the pieces on the floor were not samples for which orders could be taken, it was impossible to replenish the stock from the warehouse as quickly as the people wanted to buy.

The Fire Salvage Sale, however, will continue until all the merchandise in the damaged warehouse is sold.

CREOLE FASHION PLATE IS KEITH'S HEADLINER

Gorgeous gowns from Paris are a feature of the classy act offered at B. F. Keith's Theatre by Karyl Norman, a clever female impersonator, billed as "Creole Fashion Plate." It is his first appearance here for almost a year.

Rivalling him for close honors on the bill was Charlie Ahearn and his company of inimitable comedians, who are really funny. An alluring Egyptian dance delighted his audience.

Another headline act is presented by Harry Watson, with his impersonation of Battling Dugan, a side-splitting skit.

Others on the bill are Ella Retford, a bright English comedienne; D. D. H., mystery man with clever chatter, Lewis and Dody, humorists, Pietro, a remarkable accordionist, and the Chandon trio, aerialists.

RETIRED NEW BEDFORD CONTRACTOR IS DEAD

New Bedford, Jan. 10.—Edward M. Smith of No. 213 Orchard street, who, before his retirement from active business life was for many years a prominent contractor and merchant of the city, is dead here at the age of sixty-five, after an illness of two days.

'RED PEPPER' A CURE FOR THE BLUES

McIntyre and Heath at the Wilbur Have a Show Sure to Please

"Red Pepper," a musical comedy written for and around those two inimitable dusky stars of Ham Tree fame, McIntyre and Heath, opened last night at the Wilbur Theatre. Symbolic of its name the show is all pepper, spice and ginger.

The co-stars' names on the bill speak for themselves. They are [illegible] McIntyre and Heath [illegible] full houses wherever they appear in Boston, and last night was no exception [illegible] admissions were selling early.

PLOT NOT HEAVY

The show [illegible] McIntyre and Heath [illegible] the whole show by a long way. The applause and the laughter at the opening performance was shared by stars [illegible] specialists alike.

The specialists [illegible] something of the vaudeville stage, in exhibitions of knife throwing, lariat throwing and dancing, were nevertheless an integral part of the show.

[illegible] through two acts and seven scenes, is of course not a very heavy one. Somewhat trite perhaps, but sufficient for its purpose.

A LAUGH PROVOKER.

"Red Pepper" is a race horse and, as in all honest-to-goodness plays, is the favorite and about to be doped. McIntyre and Heath, friendly enemies and African golf experts de luxe, are rival stable boys.

Sprinkle a little love scene and love song now and again, a colored queen who captivates both stable boys, an English [illegible] who does "very blooming well," a huge chorus of pretty and [illegible] girls and you have "Red Pepper."

It is a laugh provoker from beginning to end and will, without doubt, be immensely popular while here.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM — Yesterday's bill was made up of vaudeville and photoplays the former [illegible] number of splendid acts headed by Ralph Whitehead [illegible] comedian who [illegible] appreciated for his clever character impressions. Another particularly good act on the bill is the Pot Pourri Revue, which presented a septette of artistic dancers. The feature photoplay offered that dainty and irresistible screen player, Shirley Mason, in her newest and undeniably best photoplay, "Jackie."

PARK THEATRE—Mack Sennett's new dramatic production, "Molly O," with Mabel Normand in the leading role, began its second week at the Park Theatre yesterday to the delight of huge audiences. It is filled with humor and enough drama to throw comedy into the high lights. There are the typical Mack Sennett speed of action and variety [illegible] and [illegible] to supplement [illegible] these qualities there is the infectious personality of Miss Normand to grace its leading personage.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—A tabloid [illegible] act decidedly different from any ever presented in a Boston theatre, was presented by Jeannette Hackett, Harry Delmar and a company of twelve [illegible] yesterday. The title of this unique production is "The Dance Shop."

OLD SOUTH THEATRE—"All For a Woman," a stirring, colorful screen drama was the principal feature on the program at Gordon's Old South yesterday. Another feature of keen interest was the screen presentation of the biblical story of Cain and Abel. This fascinating portrayal of the gripping Old Testament story was produced by the Sacred Films, Inc. "All for a Woman" has a background of the French Revolution, depicting the most dramatic events of those hectic days.

WALDRON'S CASINO—A very snow scene entitled "Winter in Alaska," a spectacular brimstone and fire scene entitled "Hades," a dreamy, Oriental scene entitled "Chinatown," and a moonlit, tropical scene entitled "A Yacht Voyage" were some of the scenic treats in the georgeous burlesque "Town Scandals" which packed Waldron's Casino yesterday. Miss [illegible]

MODERN AND BEACON—What [illegible] be termed an Oriental version of "Romeo and Juliet" is the new photoplay in which Sessue Hayakawa, the famous Japanese screen star was presented at the Modern and Beacon Theatres for its first Boston showing yesterday. The title is "Five Days to Live."

BOSTON THEATRE—Pearl White, in her latest release, "Any Wife," the romance of a discontented woman, and William B. Friedlander's "Dumbbells," one of the most elaborate musical comedy acts on the vaudeville stage, share the headline honors this week, topping a particularly strong bill. Miss White was never seen more advantageously than in her new vehicle, which is being given its first Boston showing.

GLOBE THEATRE — "Theodora," yesterday afternoon, began a return engagement in this city at the Globe Theatre, at a popular scale of prices. "Theodora" in a series of [illegible] scenes, brings before [illegible] the splendor that was Rome's and the sight of thousands of people celebrating the public appearances of Emperor Justinian, and later demanding the downfall of the tyrant and his faithless wife, stirs the imagination and quickens the pulse.

SOMERVILLE PLAYERS—Utilizing the same mechanical effects that served to make "The Storm" the biggest drama of recent years, the Somerville Players yesterday rightfully earned another laurel to their wreath of fame, in the revival of this stirring melodrama.

The scenic effects, which bear such an important part upon the success of the play, were faithfully carried out and the snow blizzard and forest fire are two effects that will [illegible] linger long in the memories of those who witnessed this play of the great outdoors. The keynote of these remarkable stage settings and effects is convincing realism. The story also is one of tremendous appeal.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

By FRIEDA DAVIS.

THOUGH the Japanese star, Sessue Hayakawa, is heading the bill at the Modern and Beacon Theatres this week in an uncommonly good picture, "Five Days to Live," I more than suspect that it is Viola Dana in "The Fourteenth Lover," the companion picture on the bill, who is drawing the crowds, for Monday the slogan at the Modern was "standing room only" and very little of that.

Miss Dana is one of the most irresistibly entertaining comediennes on the screen today. She and Bebe Daniels deserve a vote of thanks for brightening up motion picture bills every little while [illegible] of them fail to [illegible]

"The Fourteenth Lover" is a [illegible] Miss Dana is seen as Vi Marchmont, who is [illegible] by thirteen suitors. These thirteen are mainly getting on the family's [illegible] to decide on one of them, preferably Van Ness, the thirteenth [illegible] has her sent to the country.

Vi overhears the plot and decides to solve the problem by choosing—a fourteenth lover. He is the gardener, who is gardening [illegible] Vi finds that all isn't going as she planned. Hardy, the gardener, refuses to marry her. His wife, he declares, must be able to cook and sew.

Thereupon Vi proceeds to cook for the family to their disgust until she learns to make a snow-pudding, Hardy's weakness [illegible] things come to a happy conclusion.

The story is by Alice Duer Miller and gives the little Metro star countless opportunities for light comedy work. It gives others a chance, too, for Jack Mulhall and Theodore Von Eltz shine in the production, the former as the fourteenth lover and the latter as the thirteenth. Harry Beaumont wielded the megaphone over the film to advantage, though the lighting might have been improved on in a number of scenes, while [illegible]

"FIVE DAYS TO LIVE."

THE leading attraction is the Robertson Cole production, "Five Days to Live," adapted from the story by Dorothy Goodfellow, "The Street of the Flying Dragon." Here Sessue Hayakawa is supported by his wife, Tsuru Aoki, and an all-Japanese company. Here [illegible] has been seen [illegible] who goes through fire and water for his white brothers.

There is much of interest in the picture aside from the acting and the personalities of the players. The story is typically Japanese, [illegible] The side walk [illegible] the street story tellers, the street artists, are all shown in quaint settings and action.

Hayakawa is seen as one of these dreamy artists. He has fallen in love with a Japanese girl who passes his shop each day. Her step-father plans to marry her to a wealthy mandarin and it looks for a time as if Tai Leung, played by Hayakawa, will lose out.

At the last moment he agrees to take the place of "The Canton Wolf" on the execution block. This, it seems, is a custom in Japan. If a man sentenced to death can find someone to take his place, he, himself, can go free. Needless to say, the fee for such a service is tremendous. "The Wolf," a famous pirate, offers his hidden wealth to Tai, who accepts it to save the girl.

The step-father consents to the marriage—in view of the fortune—and Tai prepares to die in five days. Tai goes to the place of execution, and as the executioner's sword is raised comes word that "The Wolf" has died of cholera, thereby releasing Tai.

The story has been well put on and well acted. Hayakawa gives his usual polished performance, while Tsuru Aoki does a good piece of work [illegible] Goro Kino stands out particularly for his playing of the step-father. Kino is winning an enviable place for himself in the screen world for his work as a heavy. The settings are picturesque and the action consistent and well sustained.

A WORD FOR "MOLLY O."

QUITE the best picture show in town is still at the Park Theatre, where the Mabel Normand-Mack Sennett sucess "Molly O," holds forth for another week. This is a comedy that is made up of hokum, pure and simple, but it fills a big spot in the motion picture demands of today. Many of the scenes are masterly, particularly that of the dining room. Jack Mulhall figures in this film, too, but not to such advantage as in the Viola Dana picture at the Modern.

RIOT OF FUN AT THE MAJESTIC THEATRE

Nonette tops the bill at the Shubert Majestic Theatre this week, though the entire show is a riot of fun and entertainments. Nonette "makes the violin talk," and her pretty voice is a treat.

The Rigoletto Brothers, with the Swanson Sisters, have a varied act ranging from juggling to acrobatics, dancing and singing. And they score a hit.

George M. Rosener is one of the best impersonators that have come to town in a long while. He portrays a has been actor, who proves he has ability.

The Donald sisters are certainly handy balancers, and Earl Mossman and Ray Vance, late with Nora Bayes, dance and sing well.

Bert Clark and Flavia Arcaro have an entertaining line of palaver. Then there are Emily Darrell, Milton Hayes and Lipinski's dog novelty. The Shubert weekly news and a "TAD" comedy complete the bill.

FANS INSIST UPON HOME OWNERSHIP FOR ONCE POPULAR RED SOX

The petition to Judge Landis idea is gaining strength, as the baseball letter writers are getting warmed up to [illegible]. First thing you know somebody's likely to start one. It's appeals as a popular way to get the Boston Red Sox back on the map.

[illegible]

How Can Red Sox Be Saved for Boston?

Boston fans have their own ideas about the Red Sox. Some think Owner Frazee has completely wrecked the team. Others believe there is still hope of rebuilding a ball club from the ruins.

The American League situation is a big thing in sports here just now. A consensus of fan opinion would do more to iron out the troubles than anything else. Harsh, but restricted, criticism hasn't helped much. A real show-down of sentiment might.

Write your ideas on the matter in to the sporting editor. If you think the recent trades helped, say so, if you think otherwise, say so. Address letters to Sporting Editor, Boston American, No. 80 Summer street. All letters will be published.

LONDOS TRAINS FOR GARDINI BOUT HERE

Because Jimmy Londos, the Greek wrestling star, looks on his [illegible] with Gardini as the most important in his professional career, he has arranged to come to Boston to put on the finishing touches for the battle with the Italian, which will be decided next Tuesday night in Mechanics Building. Up to date Londos has been training in Chicago, but will shift here in a day or so.

Gardini has already arranged to work out in Roxbury, so that the fans will have a chance to watch both men as they reach the final stages of their preparations.

Promoter Tuohey says that the interest in the event is exceptionally high because of the evenness of the men in every department as well as for the big personal followings of each.

The conditions of the match call for a positive finish without time limit of any kind, best two out of three falls.

Ring Results

At New York—Jack Burke of Pittsburgh won a judge's decision over Sailor Martin in twelve rounds.

[illegible] won a decision over Mickey Brown in a twelve round [illegible]

NEWTON AND SOMERVILLE PLAY TO DEADLOCK

By FRED C. LANE

[illegible] passed [illegible] Somerville-Newton deadlock [illegible] hockey which ended [illegible] Of the two teams Somerville was the [illegible] puck was played, the greater part of the time, in Newton territory. The game was a surprise for the Newton rooters who expected a victory from their team.

Coach Ayer was forced to use every substitute on the squad, so hard did both teams play. Coach Martin of Newton played the same tactics, giving all the boys on his outfit a chance at the Somerville puck chasers.

Browne, goal	goal, Roberts

LINEUP AND SUMMARY. Score—Newton 1, Somerville 1. Goals made by Dunlop and Jeremiah.

[illegible]

Much of the credit for the fine showing of the Somerville team can be given Roberts, the youthful goal tender of the Somerville team who did some startling work at preventing Newton scores. On many occasions he stopped hard shots that nobody but a veteran could hold back. On one occasion Dunlop of Newton left his defence work and carried the puck the length of the rink. He made a pretty shot that had the direction and speed, but the alert Roberts was on the job and saved the day for Somerville.

[illegible] the Newton team [illegible] This can also be said of Dunlop and Osborne, who proved a [illegible] combination to break through. [illegible] Vaughn played a fine game for the Newton team as a wing. He [illegible] fast and carried the puck well. [illegible] for Somerville was in the [illegible] and gave a fine exhibition of stick handling. [illegible] to shoot goals [illegible] his left side hindered him from playing a more important part in the scoring.

Cambridge Latin should get up with the leaders of schoolboy hockey when Shea, who plays a defence position, returns to the fold next month. Indifference with his books prevented him from taking part in the scheduled contest this month.

It is the hope of Coach McDonald to have [illegible] Zarakov, who is inactive because of the age rule barring him from competing in any of the Greater Boston League games, to take a hand in the games scheduled with the various prep schools. This versatile athlete is missed by the Cambridge team, which might have a winning organization if he were back at his position.

PURVES LEADER IN AD GOLF TOURNEY

Pinehurst, N. C., Jan. 10.—Massachusetts golfers were in front in the qualifying round of the Winter Golf League of Advertising Interests championship.

R. Murray Purves, of Woodland, association champion, won low gross with a 37, 42—79, and Ernest T. Manson, Framingham, was second with 42,42—85.

One other player, W. E. Conklyn, Dunwoodie, broke eighty. He was 88. There were 76 starters.

Three Massachusetts players qualified in the first division and six in the second division. J. R. Bowker of Woodland, who won a prize in the preliminary tournament Saturday, returns the spoils today when, following a meeting of the board of directors, it was found his application had not been on file long enough. Jock was all set for qualifying round, when the "bad news" was broken to him.

James Barber, Englewood, had the lowest round he has ever made on the number two course, although he has tried it hundreds of times. He was 90 and his 23 handicap gave him the net prize with shots to spare.

Scores made by district players:

FIRST DIVISION.

R. M. Purves, Woodland, 37, 42—79
Ernest Manson, Framingham, 42, 43—85.
H. B. Lewis, Tedesco, 44, 52—96

It will be a different story Monday night, as the officials will be named by the Massachusetts Boxing Commission. The Faneuil Club suggests that licensed referees be named as judges, which would be a very good thing for all parties concerned. The calibre of some of the judges at boxing shows is not very high when it comes to knowledge about the fistic art. The big clubs would find it much easier to secure star talent if experienced referees like Larry Conley, Jack Sheehan, Larry Sweeney, Mattie Flaherty, Noah Perry, Jerry Moore, George Freeman and a few more were allowed to act as judges.

The First Iron Boat

THE first iron boat was built at Faskine, a little village near Glasgow, and plied for many a day on the Forth and Clyde Canal. Previous to the launch, many were in doubt whether it [illegible] float or not, and a good deal of betting took place.

THE BRIDE'S PLAY

A Splendid Film Romance of Irish Country Life

A Stirring and Gorgeous Photoplay, Based on Donn Byrne's Famous Story

Read the Serial Here and Then Watch for the Motion Pictures Which Will Be Shown at Leading Theatres

Synopsis

Aileen Barrett, a lovely young girl, daughter of John Barrett, lives in a small Irish village and has been brought up in a simple way, in accord with her father's scanty means, but has greatly endeared herself to the people of the countryside by her kindness and charm. Her father has long been planning great things for her, he has discovered valuable quarries of building stone on his land and becomes rich, but is stricken with death. Aileen returns from her studies at a convent and meets Bulmer Meade, whose love poems she greatly admires. He tells her he loves her. She loves him, but hesitates to say so. Sir Fergus Cassidy plans a grand ball

Screen Version Novelized

("The Bride's Play," from a story by Donn Byrne, has been created into a motion picture by Cosmopolitan Productions, direction of George W. Terwilliger, scenario by Mildred Considine. It will be released as a Paramount Picture).

"YOU tell Bulmer Meade what I think of him," she was saying, "the [illegible] making love to me and having all those photographs stuck around [illegible]. What does he think I am [illegible] use me the way he has all those other girls—you tell him so."

Aileen waited to hear no more [illegible] the silence of [illegible] Meade was explained at last. He was a [illegible] philanderer. Aileen Barrett [illegible] passed completely out of his mind. With this bitter thought racking her soul, the girl made her way to the station and with tearless eyes started back to Newry.

That ride Aileen never forgot. Persuaded of the utter perfidy of the man she had thought a chivalrous gentleman, she began to [illegible] it was Sir Fergus [illegible] she blamed herself for [illegible] and she prayed from her heart that she would never see [illegible]

When she left Newrie there was a [illegible] in her eyes. When she drove up to the house her expression was so set and hard that [illegible] forbore to question her.

She had [illegible] where she had been, had even told Sir Fergus, her first intimation that she was right came from Aileen herself.

"Please take that picture," said the young lady, pointing to a photograph of the poet that had [illegible] by his volume of poems, "and destroy it."

"That I will," said the delighted Bridget, "if I had my way I'd like to get hold of the [illegible] himself and treat em both alike—"

"You can take the book, too," said Aileen [illegible]. "I don't want to see it again."

Bridget came back and seized the offending volume. She had never [illegible] This [illegible] from Dublin and there might be hope for Sir Fergus [illegible] had returned Aileen had gone to her room and the next day, when Bridget entered she no [illegible] of the [illegible] of poems no longer adorned [illegible] dressing table [illegible] the fickleness of Meade, how that it was, could not cloud permanently the life of a girl so abounding in health and common sense as Aileen. The country had lost none of its appeal because of one man's baseness, the seas looked just as lovely and the greetings of the village people were quite as hearty.

She resumed her old walks and her old errands and no [illegible] a sign that her friendship with Irish poet had in any way hardened her. She began to think [illegible] on the train more of Sir Fergus, the difference between the [illegible] of love and the [illegible] man assumed tremendous proportions. She was thinking of Sir Francis when he met her riding not so far from the wishing well.

"You'll ride with me, Sir Fergus," she asked lightly.

"You needn't go as far as that."

"To the end of the world, Aileen," she assured him.

"Which shall it be, inland or the sea?"

"By all means the sea—the sea always has something new to say."

So they rode by the sea—and [illegible] a while resting their horses [illegible] watching the big waves [illegible] on the rocks.

The name of Bulmer Meade was not mentioned either on that day or thereafter and in the companionship of her old neighbor the image of the poet faded into the mists which the mind can summon to enshroud unpleasant memories.

The color came back to Aileen's cheeks and the lightness to her [illegible] and she was once again the [illegible] the countryside had adored [illegible] about.

And daily about the man's heart [illegible] the strings that Aileen had set vibrating when he [illegible] Wishing Well. He was afraid to speak [illegible] fearing to forfeit the [illegible] ship that had now become so precious. Yet the girl seemed nearer to [illegible]

[illegible] should again stop at the Wishing Well. It surprised Sir Fergus that Aileen climbed the Witches' Stairway so brightly; there was no sadness in her eyes this time as she [illegible] into the depths of the well while he [illegible] the battered jug into its limpid depths.

For she had seen there what she felt she would see; it was not the face of Bulmer Meade this time that stood forth like a living thing on the surface of the water, but the face of the man who knelt.

"Oh," cried Aileen, as she had cried before, and drank of the cup that Sir Fergus held for her.

"I've made my wish," said she, "and you?"—

"You know my wish," he said. "If I were to come to the well a thousand times it would be always the same."

"And it would be what?" asked the girl.

"It would be that you, Aileen, might let me say I love you and say to me I love you."

"And if I should let you say [illegible]"

"It is nothing if you say nothing—"

"But suppose I do—say something," she whispered, looking shyly [illegible]

[illegible] the woods—"you mean [illegible]

[illegible] the answer, and [illegible] of this great joy that had come to him drew her to him and kissed her.

"I'll be a proud and happy woman to marry you, Sir Fergus," she [illegible]

"And you'll not think me too old?"

"Old"—she laughed at him—"you're not old; you're just old enough to take care of me—and you know I shall need a lot of caring for."

They were long in reaching home that afternoon, and when they came in together, their eyes shining, Bridget smothered a cry: "Ye have my blessing from the bottom of my heart," she said, folding her baby to her breast. "It's a sad woman I am your father is not alive this day."

Aileen had thought of that, too, when she went to bed and lay staring at the stars she imagined that John Barrett was up there somewhere smiling his approval, for though he had said often that landlords were a bad lot he had a warm spot in his big heart for Sir Fergus Cassidy, who was different from all the rest.

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

ROMANCE OF NEWLY WEDDED LIFE

By Ann Lisle

"I AM not speculating. I know," I insisted.

"Nonsense. How [illegible] knew [illegible] and didn't [illegible] the things she bought [illegible]

"Precisely. A girl like Phoebe doesn't [illegible] when [illegible] hours [illegible] haven't [illegible] ment as near [illegible] means having things she [illegible] cause they're important. There was purpose in everything Phoebe did this morning.

"That purpose was to prepare for the step she determined to take after facing the fact that she could not bear the separation from Neal. He wasn't planning this [illegible] mind from the moment he found out that I'm [illegible] don't need [illegible]" I ended with regret that I [illegible] of [illegible] there was—on my brother's [illegible].

"[illegible] So this is the first phase [illegible] from your stubborn [illegible] on going back to [illegible] Virginia [illegible] knowledge of this wonderful Neal [illegible]"

"As [illegible] I'd been a witness at the ceremony. I tended Neal [illegible] Phoebe very [illegible] have wanted forever rather than marry her into a marriage he detested was the safest and most perfect gift a man could offer a girl like his Phoebe."

"And so you think Phoebe insisted on his eloping with her," [illegible] Virginia [illegible]

"No—I think she eloped with him," I replied, trying to arouse one glint of humor in Virginia's [illegible].

"That's what you would think," she flung at me. "This whole unspeakable situation comes from [illegible] having [illegible] with a [illegible]."

"Wait a minute, Virginia," I protested [illegible] my anger in check, [illegible] she was beside herself [illegible] knew [illegible] of her share of the Harrison temper and temperament were [illegible]

"I'll not wait another moment to tell [illegible] what I think of a man who'd persuade a delicately nurtured girl like Phoebe to run off without a bit of decent preparation—without any of the sweetness I wanted Phoebe to carry with her on her wedding journey. I wanted to send her off beautifully, royally. And now my little Phoebe has been persuaded into running away—it's [illegible]. And to make it worse you act as if she was the one to want a [illegible] without any preparation. You almost persuade me [illegible] wonder [illegible] would feel if he could see [illegible]"

[illegible] But as we [illegible] were [illegible] ahead [illegible] question you [illegible] answer."

"Very well," I replied, hanging on to the remnants of my patience and [illegible] "I'll answer anything that I can."

"It's this. When we wanted [illegible] to go after Jim and bring him back you wouldn't have it. You said you must work it out for yourself. What was it you had to work out? Had Jim begun to see—and to resent the impossible, tangled situation he'd involved us in—when he [illegible] the Harrisons to—your family?"

"Virginia," I commanded. "When you [illegible] that you consider [illegible] marriage to me a mesalliance [illegible] farther than any [illegible] of suffering and worry over Phoebe can excuse. You'd better stop unless you want the breach to widen to the point where you and I can never bridge it and find each other again."

DISARMING AND YOUTH

—By Dr. W. A. McKeever—

PERHAPS the most forward-looking outside event to occur during the Disarmament Congress was the proclamation of the Governors of all the States representing the school children of America to study the daily proceedings of that convention.

Peace and disarmament are new ideas from an international point of view and before they can be effectively put into world-wide use they must be thought and assimilated by at least one growing generation of the children of the world. The delegates of the nations may pass resolutions and the press may [illegible] ing that these great issues have [illegible] pretense [illegible] the people themselves and the people's children accept and ratify with appropriate conduct.

And so, before the ideas of international disarmament and peace can possibly become solid world facts, they must be referred back to the world's school children. Certain games which [illegible] heart of childhood, certain [illegible] sports which thrill the heart of youth, certain industrial programs which answer to the manual instincts of all the young, certain social affairs which give adolescent lovers a general view of our common human nature, certain religious ceremonies which satisfy the yearnings of the universal soul of mankind for peace with the Infinite—these deep-seated racial practices inculcated during a generation of [illegible] all the children of the enlightened world will solidify the mind and the vision of the mighty masses and will tend to break down every fictitious obstacle to universal peace.

DISCIPLINE AT HOME

ARE YOUR CHILDREN TRAINED?

DO you have some system of discipline in your home? In all too many homes [illegible] semblance of discipline either for the children or the grown ups.

With the beginning of another year, pause and think. Are you training your children for the kind of a world they must live in? Are you trying to inculcate that spirit of helpfulness so that your children refuse to allow you to wash up the dishes after dinner in the evening just because you are their mother and they want you to have a much needed rest? You can inculcate this proper respect for womanhood and the older person by explaining carefully to the child just what part the mother has played in the scheme of things.

Perhaps Robinson Crusoe could live without discipline, but just as soon as he doubled up with Mr. Friday immediately he lost his right to consider no one but himself. Each man had certain duties which had to be performed in a certain way at a certain time (in their case either night time or day time) so that both might profit.

And just [illegible] vision of duties in the home, and [illegible] discipline to see to it that the duties are performed.

If Willie has been assigned the time between 7 and 7:10 as his opportunity in the bathroom and he does not avail himself of that time for one reason or another, then he should be made to wait until the others have used the bathroom in their turn. This will teach Willie the value of promptness and also he will learn consideration for those he must live with.

Every mother or head of a family should sit down and formulate some plan whereby the members of the family will each have certain duties to perform, a definite time for bathing, playing, eating, looking over the wardrobe and the like. Every mother owes this kind of training to her children even if there is a servant or [illegible] work in the family. She particularly owes it to them if she herself must do all the work.

Deprive the little boy who habitually late for meals of [illegible] or two meals or of a trip to the "movies" when his favorite is there and you will have taught him promptness, consideration for the mother whose patient effort the meal represents, consideration for the folks he must eat with, and you shall have also begun training in discipline—that training so necessary to every successful life.

Cogent Reasons

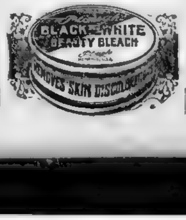
"I am here, gentlemen," explained the pickpocket to his fellow prisoners, "as the result of a moment of abstraction." "And I," said the incendiary, "because of an unfortunate habit of making light of things." "And I," said the forger, "on account of a simple desire to make a name for myself." "And I," added the burglar, "through nothing but taking advantage of an opening which offered in a large mercantile establishment."

A Little Hint

Try this Beauty Treatment for several nights and note the clear, soft, youthfulness of your complexion.

Wash your face, neck, hands and arms with warm water and Black and White Soap. Then with the finger tips, lightly apply Black and White Beauty Bleach. Allow to remain on the skin over night. Next morning remove again with warm water and soap.

All drug and department stores can supply you with Black and White Beauty Bleach, 50c the package; Black and White Soap, 25c the cake. Write Dept. E, Plough, Memphis, Tenn., for your Birthday and Dream Book, and leaflet which tells all about the toilet requisites of the Black and White line.



MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS

Read This Letter from Mrs. W. S. Hughes

Greenville, Del.—"I was under the impression that my eldest daughter had some internal trouble as ever since the first time her sickness appeared she had to go to bed and even had to quit school once for a week. I always take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound myself so I gave it to her and she has received great benefit from it. You can use this letter for a testimonial if you wish, as I cannot say too much about what your medicine has done for me and for my daughter." Mrs. WM. S. HUGHES, Greenville, Del.

Mothers and oftentimes grandmothers have taken and have learned the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So they recommend the medicine to others.

The best test of any medicine is what it has done for others. For nearly fifty years we have published letters from mothers, daughters, and women, young and old, recommending the Vegetable Compound. They know what it did for them and are glad to tell others. In your own neighborhood are women who know of its great value.

Mothers—daughters, why not try it?

Stocks Rally in New York; Call Money Again Drops to 3%; Exchange Steady

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Jan. 10.—Is the pioneering spirit dead in America? Has pioneering ceased?

Pioneering no longer takes the form of fighting wild Indians or wild beasts, penetrating regions untrodden by white men, taming virgin prairies, pushing railway tracks into inaccessible wilds.

Pioneering today takes a different form.

Take, for example, the pioneering that has been accomplished in the last twenty years, and is still being energetically accomplished, by leaders in the automobile industry.

How many towns and cities have been put on the map by able, aggressive, far seeing upbuilders in the automobile industry?

And how many other towns and cities which were moribund have been brought back to activity and prosperity through the establishment in their midst of a dynamic automobile plant?

As a mater of fact, what would strike pioneers of the last generation as nothing short of miracles has been accomplished in many parts of the country.

Think of what W. C. Durant did at Flint, Mich. Toledo was very much less of a teeming, hustling city before John N. Willys invaded it and set going his mammouth Willys-Overland works. Muncie, Ind., owes much to Tom W. Warner, while Kokomo, Ind., has been sent ahead by the energetic activities of A. C. Seiberling of Haynes automobile fame.

Where can there be found in America a place to match Connersville, Ind., the home of the Lexington Motor companies and half a score of other plants founded by E. W. Ansted and his close associates?

C. Harold Wills is transforming Marysville, Mich., from a sleepy hamlet, to a modern, model city with his Wills St. Clair automobile works and the activities which are springing up in connection therewith.

Clarence A. Earl has tackled a similar undertaking at Jackson, Mich., a stroke of enterprise which is exciting keen interest throughout the whole automobile industry. Then there is Edward Verlinden and his upbuilding of Lansing, Mich., a work that is now being carried on through the production of the Durant Four.

* * *

Kenosha, Wis., owes its place in the sun to C. W. Nash more than to any other human being, just as Pontiac, Mich., was taken in hand and boomed by the enterprising activities of Fred Warner with his Oakland car. The Clark family did the same thing for Buchanan, Mich., with the Clark Equipment Company. Then Canton, Ohio, has its Timken Roller Bearing Co., another progressive enterprise identified with the automobile industry. The development of Bloomington, Ill., had its [illegible] in the glass requirements of automobile manufacturers.

[illegible] growth of Akron, [illegible] been due very largely to [illegible] of the tire industry [illegible] to the colossal [illegible] developed by F. A. [illegible] who, by the way, has [illegible] at other points [illegible] to become again a big figure in the tire field.

* * *

One could not begin to mention cities, like Detroit, which have owed much of their expansion during the last dozen years to the establishment in their midst of automobile plants or works for the production of automobiles and accessories. Such cities dot the eastern half of the United States.

Everybody is familiar with what the United States Steel Corporation has done at Gary, Ind., in the way of taking hold of a stretch of neglected shore front and transforming it into a hive of industry, employing man, many thousands of bread-winners. But automobile giants have done the same thing at many points of the compass, although, of course, not on the same scale. Their activities, however, have called for the spirit of the pioneer, the vision of the pioneer, the faith of the pioneer, and the unsparing industry of the pioneer.

Twenty years ago the automobile industry, it may be said, didn't exist. Today there are approximately 10,000,000 automobiles in the United States. Some 2,000,000 cars and trucks were produced in 1920, and 1,680,000 even during last years' business depression. Over a quarter of a million works are engaged in manufacturing cars and trucks. To keep our cars and trucks going calls for 5,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline a year.

* * *

All this could not have been accomplished—not half of it could have been accomplished—had the pioneer spirit been as dead as many people imagine it to be simply because pioneering today takes a different form from the pioneering of a generation ago.

OILS IMPROVE LATE IN THE SESSION

Decline of Crucible a Last Hour Feature; Steels Irresponsive to Tonnage Gain

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

The New York market was irregular as to price trend at the close, but the majority of stocks were showing losses. It rallied in the afternoon after being depressed during the morning. Crucible was a last hour feature, sagging more than a point. Oils improved to considerable extent, some ending with gains. Call money was offered at 3 per cent on the stock exchange in the last hour. Trading approximated half a million shares.

Chicago & Northwestern was stronger than for several days, advancing more than two points. Most gains as well as losses, were small. The market had no distinctive feature.

A slight improvement marked the second hour, but the market was heavy at noon. It crept upward over mid-day, but was still rather weak. Haskell & Barker sold higher on the authorization of an issue of additional Pullman stock to complete the merger of these car companies. American Beet Sugar and National Enameling were two issues to recede. Steels made no gains on account of the slight gain in unfilled tonnage by the U. S. Steel Corporation during December. Victory 3¾s sold at the new high record of 11.10, while Liberty issues were strong in general. Call money opened at 3½ per cent. Foreign exchange was steady with sterling a fraction higher and marks a few points lower.

DOWN AT THE OPENING.

Most stocks were down at the opening and after a weak start the market became weaker. As a rule fluctuations were narrow and the recessional was slow. So was the rally which took a few issues above the opening level. At the end of an hour the market had not improved much. It did not respond to the lowest opening rate for call money known in four years. Oils led the decline, with Mexican Petroleum receding the most. Rails were fractionally lower. Erie common sank to a new low for a quarter of a century. The liquidation of the securities of this road remains unexplained on Wall Street. One report reads: "Rumor associated much of the recent selling with the retirement from the board of a prominent financier."

STEELS VERY QUIET.

Steel stocks were very quiet. Traders awaited the U. S. Steel Corporation report as to unfilled tonnage at the end of December. Rail buying has been on a small scale. Less than half of 1922 requirements have been ordered. Business of this kind placed so far this year does not exceed 400,000 tons, although carriers need close to a million tons of new rails. Poor January reports as to earnings by steel companies are expected. In the stock market this is an offset to merger plans. The best phase of the present situation is found in the money market. The amount to be had on time loans at 5 per cent. or less runs into the millions. But business is so dull that requirements are small. The rediscount rate reduction by the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank is an indication of the steady increase of surplus funds. The borrowing demand for stocks after the exchange closed yesterday was comparatively large. The general rate for industrials was 3½ per cent. and for railroads 3½ per cent.

BIG YEAR FOR GILLETTE RAZOR CO.

Despite the industrial depression which slowed up industry last year and other discouraging business conditions, the Gillette Safety Razor Company enjoyed one of its most prosperous years in 1921. It is reliably reported that the company earned its normal annual dividend during the first five months. This notable achievement in a period when so many strong companies are passing dividends indicates the popularity of the Gillette product, and the stability of the demand for such goods.

The company has never taken a step backward since 1905 in the matter of dividends. Its net earnings have increased enormously from year to year. During the ten-year period just past the net earnings of the company have grown annually from approximately $1,000,000 to nearly $7,000,000. In 1920, the regular dividend was 12 per cent. and supplementary dividends and stock purchase rights amounted to an equal sum. The current assets of the company at the last report were about five times the amount of the current liabilities.

During the year the company put out a new and greatly improved razor which immediately met with popular approval. More than 500,000 were sold during the first three months it was on the market and the output now is some 15,000 daily. It is being carried to every part of the globe by a remarkable sales organization. The sales force covers sixty-three nations.

Railroad Items

Although Chicago & Northwestern has been weak on the stock exchange of late, President Finley says: "There is no new financing coming on. We have plenty of cash. Traffic figures, while not what they should be, are entirely satisfactory. Our property is being kept in good condition, maintenance is not being deferred, and the state of our equipment is better than in normal times."

Western Maryland's gross decreased $125,482 in December and the decrease in 1921 was $1,900,739.

LIFE OF CONSUL NOT WITHOUT ADVENTURES

William Lancaster Jenkins Tells of Experiences Abroad During Last 7 Years

By RICHARD SPILLANE.

(Copyright, 1922, by Public Ledger Co.)

Philadelphia, Jan. 10.—William Lancaster Jenkins, who has been in the consular service some years, told a story at the Princeton Club of a dress suit.

Jenkins had arrived at Tiflis, but his baggage had not, and soon after his arrival he received an invitation from the Grand Duke Nicholas, through Prince Orloff, to attend a reception or dinner given by the Grand Duke.

To go to the affair garbed improperly was unthinkable, and to pray of hope for the arrival of the missing baggage, especially as everything in the form of baggage was being plundered about that time, was of little avail so Jenkins went skirmishing. He tried a few Armenians and Georgians of distinction, but they had forgotten what dress suits looked like. He tried the shops. The only dress suits to be had were made for persons twice the bulk of Jenkins. Some of the shopkeepers suggested they could pin them up the back and make him quite presentable.

"But think of the spectacle I'd make of myself when I turned around," said Mr. Jenkins.

"You'd never turn your back to the Grand Duke," the merchant explained. "It's bad form."

Jenkins searched Tiflis high and low without avail. In desperation he returned to the hotel and threw himself upon George, the maitre d'hotel.

"If you value your life get a dress suit for me," he ordered.

George searched through the American bazaar where bal masque costumes galore were to be found, and shortly before the time set for the Grand Duke's reception he appeared with a dress suit.

Jenkins climbed into it faster than he ever had into such garments before and, greatly to his surprise, the suit fitted him exactly. Then he made a discovery that was even more suprising. The suit was new and never had been worn. He had a desperate time adjusting that thing of torture, a white tie, but with the aid of some strong language he succeeded. Then he hurried down stairs. It was 6:55 p. m. The reception was at 7. There was plenty of time, the Grand Duke's palace being just across the street from the hotel.

Jenkins was quite proud of the manner in which he had met the situation, but an hour after the reception began he was called to the 'phone.

"Your baggage just arrived," was what the hotel people announced.

Man is peculiar. Instead of rejoicing, Jenkins confesses he felt quite angry because he had been put to so much trouble. "That's just like a man."

The life of Jenkins has been rather active in the last seven years or so. Anyone who thinks there is not chance for adventure in the consular service doesn't know that branch of governmental work. In the early days of the war he was sent to Liverpool and from there to Dublin. Immediately after he arrived at the Irish capital the Lusitania was torpedoed. He hurried to Queenstown and looked after the American dead. Later he was sent to Swansea and from there to London to attend to matters connected with war claims.

When an emergency arose in Russia late in 1915, he was sent to Moscow. His duty at first was for the relief of German and Austrian prisoners. He says the prisoners as a rule, sought to justify the sinking of the Lusitania. He worked for five months in the prison camps. Then he was assigned to Trebizond, which the Russians had taken and from there he went to Tiflis. He was in Trebizond a year and a half and it was a weird year and a half, for in that period there were epidemics of small-pox, bubonic plague, typhus and cholera.

By MONITOR

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Unsettling influences again dominated yesterday's stock market, while such favorable items as the progress at Cannes and indications of progress toward economic improvement in Europe were practically ignored. The market was wholly professional, and it must be admitted that the general price level showed few changes of a markedly adverse character, notwithstanding the uneasiness created by declines in a few issues.

THERE is still a disposition to pay relatively more attention to such items as the cut in Penna crude prices, or similar minor unfavorable developments, than to such encouraging features as the strength in foreign exchanges, the drop in the call money rate to 3 per cent., or the triumph of the Peace Party in Ireland, as reflected in yesterday's test vote.

THE chief trading incidents were furnished by further weakness in Chicago & Northwestern in the face of offical reassurances concerning the position of the road, and heavy selling of the Erie's which broke to new low levels. The decline in the Erie stocks prompted all sorts of explanations, but it would seem that doubt concerning the rate of the $15,000,000 of April maturities furnished the leading motive for the selling. Of course it is possible that the dumping overboard of individual holdings may have provided the bulk of the offerings. The selling of Texas Company from Chicago was the feature of the oils.

AMONG the strong points in the market were Corn Products and Marine preferred. In addition to subsidy prospects the bulls on this stock revived a rumor regarding the possible purchase of German shipping with the balances to the credit of International Mercantile Marine in Great Britain.

YESTERDAY'S market was depressed, a contributary cause being President Harding's dinner at the White House Saturday night. That the legislative leaders and the President have decided on the enactment of the Soldier Bonus Bill served to nullify whatever of optimistic sentiment the financial district might have had. There was unsettlement in the railroad list, with particular weakness in all of the Erie issues, and in Chicago & Northwestern, all of which made new low records for all time. There was selling of the oils and some miscellaneous stocks from Chicago, a further reduction in the price of crude oil was announced, and even the lowest call money rate since November 3, 1919, failed to stimulate buying.

SELLING of Chicago & Northwestern, which carried the price to 59, was said to represent the liquidation of a block of 10,000 shares held in an estate. The selling apparently in no way detracts from the favorable statement made by officials of the company, but represents the exigencies of an individual case. Firms which have been watching the transactions in the stock expressed the opinion that all of the holdings which were to be sold at this particular time had come to market.

OFFICIALS of the Erie Railroad said that any talk of a receivership for that company was fiction. It was said that the company will show a surplus for the year, and that no trouble is anticipated in arranging April first financing. There was an attempt in some quarters to explain the heavy selling as recording tax losses, but this argument fell of its own weight when it was suggested that selling of this character would have proved more profitable at the close of 1920 as a lower tax schedule is in effect now. All the Erie issues were pressed for sale practically to the close.

Cotton Ginning Report

Washington, Jan. 10.—Cotton ginned prior to January 1 amounted to 7,884,272 running bales, including 133,320 round bales, counted as half bales; 30,093 bales of American-Egyptian, and 3,106 bales of Sea Island. To January 1 last year 11,554,648 bales were ginned.

What are the Low Cost Coppers

In the advance that has taken place in the copper stocks the "low cost" producers have been leaders. These issues should be increasingly prominent in the further upward movement looked for.

We have prepared a special report embracing a full list of the low cost copper producers and pertinent information relating thereto.

1922 BUSINESS OUTLOOK NOT FAVORABLE

Evans Sees Year of Lifts and Depressions Without Any Even Rise

By CHARLES B. EVANS.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Business starts off in a suit of neutral colors and you cannot tell whether she is going to a dance or a funeral. That is much better than 1920, when we all rushed out in flaring colors but had to make many changes between the opening of that year and the middle of 1921.

In part, the gains in the Autumn of that year are still with us, but we may yet ignore them altogether and indulge in the luxury of woe. One of the most authoritative business men said this morning: "1922 is going to be a bad year." He was right regarding the course of affairs from the opening of 1920 on, and during the lift in industry last Autumn he said, "Yes, the steel companies will get up to 50 per cent. of capacity and then will slack off again."

Many people hereabouts are pursuing the same policy as during the second half of 1921, that is, buying securities for the income on them and in the expectation that the principal will reach a greater height before many weeks or many months have passed. One brokerage house in this city has bought recently 50,000 shares of Texas Company for customers, and the stock has been well distributed and put in the boxes of the buyers.

Accordingly Texas, in the spirit of the times, has had the impertinence to go off five points.

NO ESCAPE FOR SOME.

The same is true of several other stocks that command public confidence. The worst of it is that the investing class have not the same avenue of escape from stocks that they had a few months ago, for bonds have advanced with the decline in money, and 8 per cent. has floated off into the empyrean. So soon as many people putting on their glasses and hunting about for the January rise they conclude that it came in on the sly during December and then slipped away.

But to be reasonable with yourself you must wait a little. The January disbursements have not yet percolated through the mass of business. Your pocket waits for many payments yet to be made, and even after you get your money you do not instantly rush out and buy something.

These pleasing forces of economics begin to get their work in after the middle of January, and even February is lifted out of its gloom by the action of these funds in the market. And the interest and dividend disbursements as they are totaled by the statisticians make a surprisingly large total every quarter, including those of the government, which duly picks your pocket to get funds for subsequent payments.

REVIVALS AND LULLS.

The little lift in the Autumn is a memory but we shall have a "revival in business" from time to time throughout the year, followed by these distressing lulls and declines, and when begins the grand revival, taking in the whole earth, none of us shall know, for it will come like a thief in the night. It will deprive a lot of the short sellers in the stock market of huge profits which they have considered perfectly safe tucked in between the mattresses.

It is the mood of the times that there shall be lifts and depressions, and not any straight and even course toward higher or lower levels. The man most likely to be right is he who looks for a billowy surface during 1922. We shall be favored beyond precedent if we escape those extreme misfortunes which have characterized business depressions in the past—heavy losses, unemployment, the breadline, reduction in wages, public disturbances, a semi-desperation in the minds of all whose fortunes have not placed them beyond the reach of want.

HOPE IN WHEAT.

Yet there is a reason for hope that these misfortunes will not overtake us. This country is the treasury of the world. Moreover, we have a system of finance so superior to anything in the past that one hesitates to make any comparison and probably superior to that of any other country in the world. To get the full benefit of that system we must do many things yet, and one recoils from the possibility of serious labor troubles. The desirable thing is that we shall reach a liquidated condition by a gradual process and the policies of the banks have had that constantly in view.

Big Victory Bond Sale

New York, Jan. 10.—One lot of $1,000,000 U. S. Victory 4¾ per cent. bonds sold on the Stock Exchange this morning at 100.10.

TRADING QUIET ON BOSTON EXCHANGE

No Morning Feature to the Local Market; Curb Prices Rule Lower

Irregularity prevailed on the Boston exchange all the morning, but at the end of the first hour losses exceeded gains. There was a slight rally in the second hour. Trading was rather narrow and price changes ruled small. Rails were a weak class. Coppers were mixed in movement and packing issues were steady. Issues of the Warren Brothers were active and the first preferred stock sold at its highest since 1920. It advanced 1⅜. Eastern Manufacturing, also prominent, gained a point. Boston & Maine declined 1⅛, Copper Range 1, Calumet & Hecla 2, Orpheum 1½, Atlantic Gulf 2⅜ and Agricultural Chemical preferred 1.

In in the afternon the market retained morning characteristics and was dull. Quincy and East Butte lost a point, and Amoskeag 1½. Columet & Hecla recovered part of its forenoon loss.

CURB MARKET WEAK.

The Curb market was weak at the start and weaker at noon. Boston & Montana led in activity. Gains at noon included Southern States 2 cents at 34 cents, Santa Fe 3 cents at 20 cents, Verde Mines 1 cent at 24 cents and Verde Central ¼ at 2½. Among declines were Boston & Montana 2 cents at 83 cents, Eureka 2 cents at 22 cents, International Sugar 7 cents at 78 cents, Crystal 1 cent at 62 cents, Denbigh 1 cent at 7 cents, Mutual 1 cent at 31 cents, Ruby 5 cents at 30 cents and Seven Metals 2 cents at 8 cents. Alpha had lost an opening gain.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Jan. 10.—Small ginning figures has a stimulating effect on cotton prices at the start and the list opened 9 to 17 points higher. Liverpool, Japanese and other foreign interests were the best buyers. The selling was quite active, mostly from Wall Street and Southern wire houses, and eventually checked the rise, so that by the end of fifteen minutes quotations were off a little from initial levels. Three notices were issued. Opening prices were: January, 18.62; March, 18.40; May, 18.02; July, 17.49; October, 16.72.

New York Money Rates

New York, Jan. 10.—The opening rate for call money was 3¼ per cent., the lowest initial quotation since 1918. Time loans for 30 to 90 days were made at 4½ per cent. on mixed collateral, and four to six months money was offered at 4¾ per cent. on merchant's paper. These are the lowest quotations in more than two years.

Gain in U. S. Steel Tonnage

New York, Jan. 10.—Contrary to expectation, the U. S. Steel Corporation showed a small gain in unfilled orders at the end of December. A decrease of about 100,000 tons had been looked for. Instead there was an increase of 17,872 tons. Unfilled orders on December 31 totaled 4,268,414 tons against 4,250,542 at the end of November.

MORE NEW CARS THAN EVER IN 1922 SHOW

By C. F. DONNOCKER.

New York, Jan. 10.—The twenty-second National Automobile Show which opened Saturday night in the Grand Central Palace, has been pronounced by "old-timers" the greatest exhibition of cars ever staged in America.

The hotel lobbies and corridors are crowded with automobile men and more are arriving every day. It is predicted that in point of attendance this show will probably surpass many record years.

There are more new and improved passenger cars to be seen at the 1922 show than were ever before exhibited at one time. Not only are there improved designs of existing makes, totally new chassis and bodies, but novel developments in engines and complete cars.

Among the new makes which are to be seen are the Richenbacker, designed by America's Ace of Aces. This car has a number of refined details, among them an engine with two flywheels. The car resembles the French Delage. It has a road speed of over sixty-five miles per hour.

Chandler has a new six with many chassis changes and a different design of body which will have an instant appeal.

Durant is showing the new six with an Ansted engine. This car has a wheel base of 123 inches and carries a light, low-hung body of large dimensions. The engine has a bore of 3¼ inches and 4½ in stroke.

There is a new Stutz and it has a left-hand drive. Many changes are to be noted in this car.

The Leach-Biltwell, made on the Pacific Coast, is a brand-new six with an overhead cam-shaft engine.

Velie is out with a new car, the model 58, which has a newly-constructed overhead-valve engine. In this engine even the wrist pins are lubricated under pressure. Lexington has a new model.

Buick is out with a new roadster, and the Premier has i's aluminum engine changed somewhat.

Nash is showing a new six and a new four, which are fundamentally like the former designs, but show vast improvements in chassis detail and bodies.

Mitchell has a six with a new engine which shows a new design of cylinder block, new pistons, and is manufactured so that an oil film will contsantly be maintained around moving parts.

Case has a new chassis, a complete line of new bodies; Auburn is showing new sport-car designs. Dealers will see for the first time the new models made by the Paige organization.

The Gray, the car built by an organization headed by Frank L. Klingensmith, with his many years' experience in making low-priced cars, is attracting great attention in the lobby of the Commodore Hotel. This car is built to sell under $500 and has a sliding gas transmission, 100-inch wheel base, 4-cylinder motor and a novel spring suspension of the cantilever type.

Among the Bostonians seen at the show are F. L. Skeeton (Paige), W. A. Gleason and J. G. Utterback (Dort), Harold Bornstein (Cadillac), J. L. Snow (Peerless), R. E. Nettleton (Chandler & Ceveland), F. A. Dutton (Auburn), Ross Maddox (Stuart truck). More dealers are arriving daily.

MEXICO A TRUE DEMOCRACY TODAY

Princeling's World - Famous Jocket Club Now Restaurant With Soda Fountain

By OTHEMAN STEVENS.

Copyright, 1922, by Universal Service.

Mexico City, Jan. 10.—It was twelve years ago that I saw Porfirio Diaz, then President, receive a new British ambassador in the famous hall of the ambassadors in the National Palace here.

Don Porfirio sat in the throne chair that stood on a dais. The chair is an enormous high-backed, scarlet silk plush affair reeking with royal traits.

Several score of generals in parade uniforms, round shouldered from the weight of medals and orders, lined one side of the great room.

The chief of the protocol office ushered the ambassador in at the other end of the room and both of them kowtowed.

Don Porfirio rose and bowed.

The protocol chief and his charge then solemnly marched to the centre of the room and again kowtowed. Again Don Porfirio rose and bowed.

The two then marched directly in front of the throne and kowtowed, and the ambassador made his speech. Don Porfirio made his, and the show was over.

CHAIR AND DAIS DISCARDED.

It was not long after when again I was a witness in that same room to the reception of a new British ambassador by President Madero and the same ceremony was gone through. But Madero did not seem to fancy its triviality, and it seemed that one could read on his face the thought "what nonsense all this is!"

Yesterday again I visited the hall of the ambassadors, though there was nothing going on.

But there was the chair off to one side and the dais and the heavy silken canopy unused, discarded.

The officer who has chaperoning us pointed to the throne, and I told him whom I had seen occupy it and the theatrical ceremony.

"Bueno," he answered. "There it is, the President's chair, unnoticed.

"For President Obregon, he does not like it; it is too fussy, and he does not use it."

There is an American restaurant here which illustrates more than more dignified things the democratization of Mexico.

For that restaurant, with a drug store and a soda fountain as appendices, occupies the once world-famous jockey club, on what was the also world-famous Avenue de San Francisco, but which is now the Avenue of Francisco Madero.

PRINCELINGS GO TO WORK.

The jockey club imitated the jockey club of Paris. Its membership was made up of the caciques of the country and their sons. It had a sporty reputation, and stories of high play, like unto that in Brooks's of old-time London and of Caligulan banquets, were rife. It was something of a sight to see the gorgeous equipages—not excelled by those of Vienna or Paris—drive up and unload glittering dandies.

But today the correspondent sat in the patio of the jockey club and consumed an ice cream soda.

And the old-time guests there?

Well, the caciques and their princelings, they have had to take their choice of going to San Antonio, Tex., or of going to work. Fortunately for themselves, many have chosen the latter alternative.

Jim McCullough of El Paso, Houston and the wide West generally, arrived at the hotel where I am, lately, and gave a "whoof!" of satisfaction. He was back from a business visit to Kansas City. He said:

"Gosh! I didn't know whether I ever would get back here. That's an awful tough country up there. Day I arrived a bank was held up; that afternoon a jewelry store was looted by robbers; the next day there were four holdups, one just around the corner from where I was, and a train I expected to take, but missed, was held up.

PROPERTY IS SAFE.

"I finished my business as quickly as I could and got out. I want to live in a country where life and property are safe; so I hiked back to Mexico."

Later on McCullough talked about Mexico, which he knows as well as Thomas W. Lamont knows interest tables. He said:

"It's all largely recognizing the matter of the keyhole upside down.

"They do everything differently in Mexico from the way in the States, except in digging a well.

"When I first came here—and the habit still exists—when a man built a house he would put the doorlocks in with the keyhole upside down.

"It used to bother me to see it, and once I remonstrated and asked a man why he didn't put the keyhole in the other way, right side up.

"Why, Senor," he answered, "that would be upside down."

"Now, it really does not make any difference whether a keyhole is right side up or upside down, if Mexicans prefer it upside down, why, it's all right; let them do it without flushing them with our supposed superior way.

"Americans should remember that much of what is here upside down to them is right side up with the Mexicans, and our right side up is upside down to them.

"By paying attention to their customs, we can unlock the door, no matter which way the keyhole is.

HOUSE DEMOCRATS WILL HOLD CAUCUS

A general caucus of Democrats in the State House of Representatives will shortly be held to determine the policy which will be pursued at the present legislative session. This was decided at a meeting called by Minority Leader Edward F. Harrington of Fall River. The time and place for the caucus have not been determined.

SEND IN YOUR VOTE, MAY WIN A PRIZE

WHICH comic series in the Boston American do you like BEST?

Which comic series in the Boston American do you like LEAST?

The Boston American will give fifty original drawings to its readers who write the best letters on the above subject.

Each of the fifty winners may designate his favorite series, and an original drawing by that artist who created that series will be given each winner.

Everybody is eligible.

The letter must be divided into two parts—the first part devoted to the writer's opinion of the comic series which the participant regards as best, and the second part to the comic series which the voter regards as least meritorious.

A voting blank is printed herewith.

Use that with your letter. The test will end on February 1. Men women and children are eligible. Only one vote and letter permitted to each participant.

All letters should be addressed to the Comic Editor Boston American, 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

Letters may be either written in pen and ink or typewritten on one side of paper.

Let's have your letter and vote at once.

MISS LUCIER BACK, DENIES "ELOPEMENT"

Miss Grace Lucier, eighteen-year-old clerk in the State Highway Bureau, who fled from her home with Harold Nott Sunday morning, did not elope at all, she said today when she resumed work. She simply paid a short visit to Nott's parents in Barre. Nott is a taxi driver and he and Miss Lucier left suddenly last Sunday morning while Charles L. Lucier, the girl's father, was trying to prevent them. Mr. Lucier said today his daughter had promised not to see Nott any more.

Staining a Man's Reputation

Allen's Action Goes Beyond the Limit; He Should Watch His Zeal and Flatterers

Last week at the hearing before the Supreme Court on the Attorney-General's petition for the removal of District Attorney Pelletier from his office, there occurred a situation which ought to be given more publicity than it received.

A man named Matches was on the witness stand, testifying for the prosecution. He was asked a question concerning what he claimed Mr. Frank Carroll, a reputable lawyer in this community, said on an occasion when he, Matches, was present. Senator Reed, on behalf of Mr. Pelletier, objected upon an elementary ground. The court, thereupon, asked Mr. McCarthy, who was conducting the prosecution for the Attorney-General, if he was charging Mr. Carroll with being in the conspiracy with Mr. Pelletier. To this question, Mr. McCarthy replied that he would not for a moment cast any aspersions upon Mr. Carroll. Then the court declared that the question could not be asked. Whereupon, the Attorney-General rose and stated to the court that he named Mr. Carroll as a conspirator.

Now this is a serious business. A man builds up a reputation in a community after long and hard labor and it is not to be stained to accomplish some other object, and merely because there is no criminal or civil liability on the part of those who make the stain. The Attorney-General and his associates knew all the facts in this case for weeks, and they knew nothing more, except possibly a little more law, after the court told them that unless Mr. Carroll was a conspirator, the testimony could not be given. No new facts had come to the Attorney-General and his associates which changed Mr. Carroll from a respectable lawyer on whom the prosecution would not for a moment cast an aspersion, to a conspirator, in an alleged criminal act. We repeat that the only thing which the Attorney-General and his colleagues had learned from the moment they said Mr. Carroll was a respectable gentleman and lawyer, to the moment that he became a conspirator was an elementary rule of law which prevented Matches from telling what he claimed was a statement made by Mr. Carroll in his presence.

Even if Matches were a reputable witness, and if his word were worth much, it would have been bad enough; but to blast the reputation of a respectable man in order to get in the dubious word of a fellow who has been convicted of crime in this very Emerson Motors case, and is under sentence to three years in the Federal prison, goes beyond the limit.

The Attorney-General wants to be careful to restrain his partisanship. He started out, with a perfectly good motive, to cleanse this community from blackmailers, and in some directions he is doing a fine job, but he should watch his zeal and those who flatter him, lest they both betray him.

Sacco and Vanzetti

Justice in This State Has Not Yet Been Exhausted—Supreme Court and Governor

Nothing is gained by the denunciation of our Massachusetts courts in the Italian Chamber of Deputies, on account of the conviction of Sacco and Vanzetti.

If they have been unjustly convicted, and this newspaper has grave doubts concerning the conviction, the fault does not lie in the court, but rather in human nature, and under the circumstances an Italian court would be just as subject to the frailties of the situation in which these men found themselves, as our Massachusetts courts. We have examined the judge's charge to the jury and cannot see that it was not a fair charge. Nor on its face, did the denial of a new trial seem obviously unfair.

The difficulty, if any, with the Sacco and Vanzetti conviction lies far back of the trial. It lies back in the wretched propaganda which went on during the war, by which independence of opinion and freedom of speech were sought to be repressed. After the war those in whose hands the organization of this propaganda had fallen were those who were interested in the continuance of the suppression of radical opinion, and they continued the propaganda until honest people were led to believe that an Italian or a Jew or anybody else with a strange name, even an Irishman, was a potential enemy of society, and that to be a Socialist meant to be an anarchist, and that there was only one kind of an anarchist, and he was a potential murderer.

Even back of the war propaganda lies the error in our American education, which has not taught us to think for ourselves, but to insist upon having our opinions predigested by newspaper headlines and by propaganda.

However, Massachusetts justice is not yet exhausted in the Sacco and Vanzetti case. If there are any errors in the trial which have made against these two men, we are sure that our Supreme Court will detect them and give them another trial; and if there are no such errors, there is still the appeal to the Governor. We judge by the character of his inaugural message and by his personal history that he will resolve every doubt in favor of saving the lives of these two men.

Courts Against Tenants

Commission on Necessaries of Life Criticizes Judges for Failure to Protect Occupants From Landlords

The Massachusetts Commission on the Necessaries of Life makes a public criticism of our lower courts for their failure to protect tenants who apply to them under the law for protection against avaricious, oppressive landlords.

The commission says that one of the methods by which these judges are attempting to make useless the law passed to protect tenants is not only by deciding against them, but when they appeal requiring outrageous bonds running from $2,500 to $7,000. Generally these tenants are people without cash resources and without property, and it is quite difficult, if not impossible, to get bonds so large.

The commission cites one case where a judge required a bond of $7,000 of a tenant who occupied only one-half of a house, when the value of the whole house was only $5,000.

Such attitude toward the law by our judges brings them into disrepute, and makes them the enemies rather than the administrators of the law, and does a great harm to the community. Of course, not all the judges are guilty of this kind of misfeasance. But too many of them are guilty and it is time they stopped, realized who they are, what their position is, what their responsibility is. It might be a wholesome thing if some of them were impeached.

'New Poor' Are Big Problem

LONDON, Jan. 10.—"Bad times in London have created a class known as the 'New Poor.' But, on the whole, they manage pretty well. Now, however, the stress of the times has hit what is known as 'Society.'

This statement is made by Mrs. F. J. Turquand, who during the war was in charge of 40,000 grils as superintendent of the great ordnance factory at Woolwich.

"I have been amazed of late," says Mrs. Turquand, "to receive large numbers of requests from my friends among society women declaring themselves to be in dire financial straits. They ask help to make a living for themselves.

"They tell me that greatly reduced circumstances compel them to endeavor to take up some kind of employment in order to make ends meet, but they do not know where to find work suitable to hold on their station in life.

"On the other hand, I receive letters from wealthy people—bachelors, widowers, widows, etc.—declaring they are at their wits' end to know how to run their establishments.

"I am trying to bring these two sections together to their mutual advantage, and I am beginning a special agency for that purpose.

At the moment I have three viscountesses and the wife of a British ambassador recently returned from abroad—all wanting work; also many widows who have had beautiful homes but who have been compelled to give them up."

HOW THE GUILLOTINE DOES ITS DEADLY WORK IN FRANCE

Possible Execution of Landru Revives Interest in Axe Which Has Ended So Many Careers

By H. COLLINSON OWEN,
Universal Service Special Correspondence.

PARIS, Jan. 6.—The French call the guillotine "La Veuve"—the widow. I do not think Landru will ever feel her cold embrace. It is the one sensation which this specialist in widows is likely to miss.

But even if he does meet "La Veuve," his acquaintance with her will be terribly short. It happens that I have been present at two executions in Paris; and the outstanding impression of the guillotine is its terrible speed and efficiency.

I am not an amateur of horrors, as the French say, and did not definitely seek out these sensations. They came more or less in the day's work. But that is by the way.

The first occasion concerned a young man, a typical "apache," who had murdered his mother for a few francs, her savings.

For eleven years the guillotine had not worked in France. It had not been abolished. The Chamber had simply refrained from voting M. Deibler's salary of $2,500 a year, and it came to the same thing. France is more indulgent to crime than we are, but the murdering of mothers is one of the things the French cannot stand.

The young man had been horribly callous over it all. Knowing that his head was safe, he had even described in court exactly how he did it. For a year he lay in prison, waiting to be sent to New Caledonia. Then the Chamber decided to pay M. Deibler's salary again.

Scene a Memorable One

The authorities took extraordinary precautions over the first execution for eleven years. There were regiments of soldiers and police. French executions must be in a public place, but the public itself was kept a quarter of a mile away. I went out to see seething crowds crying "a mort," and instead found myself—thanks to my journalistic police pass—one of a little group of about fifty persons watching the erection of the sinister machine outside the prison wall.

It was a strange scene. M. Deibler was there—Monsieur de Paris as they call him—with his three assistants. All sturdy, powerful men, in dark clothes and bowler hats. They had candle lanterns and spirit levels. There was the clink of metal as they moved about in the darkness with their glimmering lights. At last the machine was erected, and they worked the dread knife surmounted by its terrific weight of metal.

In Short Trousers

The figure that appeared then wore only a pair of very short cotton pants. Over his head and body hung a voluminous black veil. His hair and beard, of bright golden color, had grown long in prison. His skin was of a ghastly pallor, and as he was helped out of the van the gold of his hair shone through the veil. In that first moment, as he stood framed in the folding doors, it seemed to those watching that a woman had appeared.

On his weak and palsied legs, supported by the strong hands of the executioners, the prisoner stood facing the machine, his arms bound tightly behind his back. There was a gabble of legal French, with all the civilians uncovered, except Deibire, in his silk hat of ceremony, anr the assistants in their bowler hats. The shrinking assassin listened to his doom, the veil still covering his head and naked body. Then the sound of the voice seased and M. Deibler and his men were galvanized into astonishing activity.

What followed was unbelievably rapid. They fell on him. The veil was whipped off. With the impulse of their immense strength he seemed to hit the bascule—the plank that stands upright and then swings up to the horizontal—in mid-air. A few other lightening movements. The knife fell. There was one sound only—an indescribable sound—the head had disappeared into its receptacle and the body had fallen into the huge basket, full of sawdust, waiting for it.

Clock 400 Years Old Has Quit

LONDON, Jan. 10.—After continuous service for nearly 400 years (since 1544), the old clock in the Royal Exchange has finally worn out. A sum equal to about $2,500 has been appropriated for a new clock.

Captain Frank Entwistle, D. S. O., M. C., who has just been killed on the Afghan frontier and who won the D. S. O. in Palestine when he held a position against an overwhelming Turk force, always wore a monocle in action.

Viscount Knollys, who was private secretary to King Edward for forty years, has, at the age of eighty-four, just undergone a serious operation on one of his eyes. He stood it well.

Colonel Sir Archibald Weigall, who recently resigned as Governor of South Australia, gave as his reason that his private income is so reduced by British taxation that his salary of $20,000 a year is too small to live on.

Statistics just made public show that $100,000,000 has so far been realized by the allies from the sale of shipping of the former enemies.

Sir Henry Duke, president of the divorce division, has established a new record. He granted 316 divorces at one sitting.

SOME FACTS OF SPEED TOLD BY A SCIENTIST

By Garrett P. Serviss

I HAVE two letters, both from Chicago—the city of busy brains—which again bring out the puzzles of the laws of motion, puzzles well worth considering because an understanding of them helps to make clear a hundred things in everyday experience, ignorance of which may often work to one's disadvantage.

(1) "My friend and I have had a hot discussion which we will have to ask you to solve. I claim that a bird flying in a small circle in the centre of a train car traveling fifty miles an hour, all windows and doors closed, will not be struck by the rear end of the car. In other words the speed of the train will have nothing to do with the changing of position of the bird. My friend claims it will; the car will strike the bird. Kindly unravel this, and explain if either is right."

Train Forms Closed System

If the bird began to describe its circle in the enclosed air after the car and its contents were all in full motion together at fifty miles an hour, or any other uniform speed, it would not be affected in its movements by the motion of the car.

The car, the air within it, and the passengers and everything that they had with them, would constitute a "closed system," every member of which could move freely with regard to the other members just as if all were at rest together.

The bird would move around and round in what might be a horizontal circle if referred to the floor of the car beneath it, but which, if considered with reference to the track, or ground under the car, would be drawn out into a long, waving line with loops or sharp inflections.

Everything depends upon the point of view of the observer, and the case illustrates one of the principles of the Einstein theory. To a person inside the car looking at the bird, the later would appear to be traveling at uniform speed, round and round in the same track in space; but if a person outside the car could see it and could continue to keep it in view as the car sped away he would say that the speed of the bird was continually changing, alternately increasing and decreasing.

When in that part of its horizontal circle where it was flying in the same direction as the movement of the train its speed, with reference to the ground, would be greatest, being made up of its own speed of flying added to the speed of the train which it shared. When its course lay at right angles to the length of the car, its speed over the ground would be diagonally compounded of its own speed and that of the train. When it was flying in the contrary direction to the run of the train, its speed with regard to the ground would be slowest, because it would be equal to the difference between the bird's flying speed inside the car and the running speed of the car and its contents in the opposite direction.

To Upset Speeding Auto

(2) "Is it possible for an automobile going sixty miles an hour to be tipped over if struck directly in the centre? I understand that an automobile was struck in that manner by a motorcycle, and immediately tipped over. A friend says an object going sixty miles an hour if hit at the centre cannot be thrown off its balance and tipped over."

Yes, and I have myself known something of the kind to happen. The idea that a swiftly moving car cannot be tipped over if struck a powerful blow from the side no doubt arises from the well-known physical principle that an object in rapid motion resists, by inertia, a diverting force. But this applies especially to rotary motion, although it has some effect in other cases, if the motion is sufficiently swift.

But a strong enough blow will knock over either the speeding automobile or the speeding drunkard.

LET THIS SINK IN

Employers are often to blame for employes not delivering the goods.

It is sometimes that an employer complains because he has to hire a new man when a better system of dealing with his man might have made a good worker and not a poor one.

Often bosses follow the employer's lead and cuss and swear when things go wrong, but they do not have a straight-from-the-shoulder talk with the man who does not come up to the standard of work required.

Men get into ruts if left to themselves, and do not realize it.

The employe keeps going from month to month, not knowing that he is failing to meet requirements of his superior.

Then the blow falls and in such a way that the man does not understand.

HATING BOY WILL MAKE AN EAGER FIGHTER

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

FRANK is only five. His big, loving eyes belie his belligerent little tongue.

Asked the inevitable question about what he would be when he grew up, he responded with the militant announcement that he would be a soldier.

A soldier of the church? queried the fond father. A soldier of love, suggested the responsible mother. O, no—answered young America—he would be a fighting soldier and shoot German boys!

But they would be grown up by that time, and perhaps one of them might kill him. So we oldsters argued. But the youngster was obdurate—and confident that he might deal out death to another, but it would never find him!

That attitude is typical—a sort of glorified and multiplied David Harumism—that you will do unto the other fellow as he would do unto you; but you will do it first.

Perhaps not; and the doubt brings the sporting element into war—and business and love and into the whole Game of Life.

What is horrible in the otherwise playful incident, narrated above as it actually occurred, is the terrible fact of hatred already lodged and concrete in the heart of this little child.

His parents did not give him that legacy. He got it out of the air as it were of American life, as part of the awful aftermath of the crazy war.

How can we expect the progress of our race towards humanness, if the children—presumably the product of their parents' love—are practically born into a world of mutual hatred?

Will Be Hard Fighter

To be sure, a hating boy will make an eager fighter. If that is what we want, good soldier-stuff, duly to be translated into "heroes"—for the fighting period only.

But the folly of having our little boys hate Germans, who may be our nearest allies in the next mad scramble of the nations! That is a waste of precious hatred, in a world of insane peoples whose enmities and alliances are merely momentary expressions of their self-interest as nations.

It all depends! Democratic America and autocratic Japan fought on the same side—humorous idealists say it was to make the world safe for democracy—though they are supposed now to be spoiling for a fight against each other.

All of which is not designed to be belated argument for the League of Nations nor for a leaguing of all the nations, nor even as a futile protest against armaments and war.

But rather it is meant to be a plea to America to become the Great Lover among the nations of the earth. We are OF all the nations, we should easily be FOR them all!

Indeed, the pleading is even more special and particular than this. It is with all parents, to beget and conceive their children in love, and to receive them into an atmosphere of love and rear them in the spirit of good will.

Up to Americans

America can become the Great Lover of the nations, only if your average American is a loving person. Imaginably, one might also plead with grownups for surcease of hatred and the achievement of good will; but one would be self-deluded who had strong hope of significant success along these lines.

Clearly, the children constitute the hope and the despair of mankind.

If ever our aspiring race is to become human enough to be beyond war, it will "arrive" by the simple but difficult expedient of learning to love and to respect its members.

Only children can learn such simple truths—or adults with the sensitive spirit of simple childhood.

Neither the churches, nor disarmament conferences, nor leagues of nations, nor international chambers of commerce, nor world trade, nor world communication—though all of these may make beneficent contribution—will ever bring peace on earth.

Only the vanishing of hatred from the hearts of the children will bring the banisament of war from the face of this earth.

To that end, our children must be born and bred and reared and educated in love.

Obviously, that will be a slow process, because of the amount and the vast variety of hatreds still and always maintained and propagated by the elders, with their pet prejudice and the corresponding hatreds.

Gradually, however, we shall learn how to retain our differences and our loyalties without hating one another.
